Board of Education Had Monthly Session On Friday Evening

Permission Granted for Use of High School Auditorium—Coal and Fuel Bids to Be Readvertised—Superintendent's Report.

All members were present at the monthly meeting of the Board of Education Friday evening: Trustees Walter, LeFever, Byrne, Katz, Kearney, Cragin, Mathews, Powell and President Beeres.

Miss Lina M. Schmidthorst was given permission to use the auditorium on the evening of June 9 for a piano recital, no admission to be charged. The request of the Rifle Club and the Webster-Haines Debating Club for an entertainment and dance on the evening of May 12 was also granted.

A communication from the Kingston Taxpayers' Association, by Andrew Ferguson, secretary, transmitted recommendations from that association, approving of the Crawford bill, before the recent legislature and the proposition to retire teachers who have served the requisite 35 years entitling them to pension. Attention was called to the fact that the action on the part of the association had no political nor religious significance. The communication was referred to the teachers' committee for consideration.

Bids were opened for coal and fuel oil for the coming year, when it developed that many of the concerns were not prepared to submit prices as their companies had not yet definitely established spring prices. They asked for an extension of time and on motion all bids were rejected and it was decided to readvertise for bids to be submitted at the next meeting of the board. The bids are to be based on specifications heretofore adopted by the board as to grade and quality.

Two concerns submitted prices for fuel oil. The H. & R. Oil Co., for the Gulf Refining Co., submitted a price of 6½c per gallon, delivered, and C. O. Fromer, for the Fromer Petroleum Co., gave a price of 6c per gallon.

The following coal companies submitted prices:

Independent Coal Co., 166 Cornell street—Buckwheat, $6.70 per ton; Pea, $7.95.

Edward Osterhoudt, 20 Pine street—Buckwheat, $7.50; Pea, $8.50.

C. K. Wood, 111 Downs street—Buckwheat, $6.75; Pea, $8.50.

Penn Coal Terminal Co., Newburgh—Buckwheat, $6.50; Pea, $7.75.

Beardslee & Lewis Coal Co., Peckville, Pa.—Pea, $7.25; Buckwheat, $6.14.

Drafts were ordered drawn for vouchers amounting to $3,626.12 and the April pay-roll, amounting to $34,354.39.

A resolution presented by the supplies committee authorized the purchase of janitors supplies as needed during the coming school year, on the open market.

Superintendent Van Ingen submitted a calendar for the school year 1933-34. It allows for 193 days of school and on motion was adopted. The superintendent also submitted his report, following which the Board went into executive session.

School Calendar for 1933-34

Superintendent Van Ingen's Report.

To the Board of Education
of the City of Kingston.
Gentlemen:

The epidemic of measles prevalent during the month of March, has subsided. The effect of this epidemic is indicated by the percentage of attendance for March—88 per cent, as compared with preceding months—February 95 per cent; January 93 per cent. The increased vigilance of the medical department during this period is shown by the number of pupils inspected in February (4615) and March 7336 or 11951 for the two months. Many more home visits were required also—622 during the two months.

May I call your attention to the work done for our schools through the unemployment relief committee. The grounds of schools Nos. 4, 5, and 8 have been greatly improved by removing the surfaces, grading, placing about four inches of crushed stone and covering with stone dust, all of which was thoroughly "placed" by use of heavy street roller.

The grounds of school No. 5 have been improved by grading, removing loose rock materials and placing of proper drainage facilities.

At the back of the high school the irregular rock surface on the upper portion has been leveled until now there is an elliptical level plot about 270 feet from front to back and 240 feet in cross dimension. The lower part has also been graded to produce a rectangular area of approximately 300 feet by 135 feet. Both these areas with a little additional attention in surface dressing, rolling, etc., may be made into a very satisfactory, much needed playground for track, tennis and kindred games. These plots will also be used for the out door gymnasium work as given by the physical directors.

We are fortunate that the work is thus far done, but the "finishing" is still before us and can be completed in a short time with comparatively little expense.

Respectfully submitted.
B. C. VAN INGEN,
Superintendent of Schools.
Kingston, N. Y., April 28, 1933.

U. S. Submits Plan Of World Economic Truce on Tariffs

London, April 29 (AP).—A proposal for a far-reaching world economic armistice designed to interrupt the warfare of prohibitive tariffs and exchange restrictions, was submitted by the United States today to the organizing committee of the World Economic Conference.

The proposal was made by Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, who declared after the meeting that every member of the committee seemed to be pleased with it "although two or three did appear to be greatly surprised."

The committee formally fixed the date for the opening of the World Economic Conference as June 12.

The committeemen were unable to take any action on the American proposal but they decided to notify their governments. This will be done simultaneously with the issuance of invitations to the world parley.

The truce would put a stop to economic warfare until the agreements to be reached at the conference can be made effective. It would end trade and commerce barriers of all kind, including tariffs sufficiently high to act as barriers, bounties on exports, prohibitions, dumping and restrictions on exchange.

Preparations for May Day Celebration

(By The Associated Press)

The capital of Communism, Moscow, will run into as stiff competition as it ever encountered in seeking to set the pace Monday for international celebrations of May Day.

Dictatorial regimes in Austria and Germany have forbidden demonstrations by Communist or other Leftist elements, which in past years made a big event of the day in Berlin and Vienna.

While Moscow has its annual Red army parade, cities of Germany will honor labor in strictly nationalistic style. The Hitler government has appropriated the holiday for its own.

In the United States and other countries, communists are proceding with plans for the holiday with governments taking only ordinary precautions to preserve peace.

Chile has given its president unusual powers to surpass communist and leftist agitators. Argentina has forbidden the appearance of Red flags or Communist emblems.

The dictatorial regime in Cuba has forbidden any demonstrations although authorizing a business holiday.

Body of Australian Speed Pilot Found

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press.)

Castel San Nicolo, Italy, April 29 (AP).—Bert Hinkler, noted Australian speed pilot, apparently crashed head-on into a mountainside in the middle of the afternoon of January 7, when he was killed here.

This was learned today when an Associated Press correspondent reached the scene where Italian charcoal burners found the body and shattered plane yesterday. The discovery came nearly four months after the famous airman started his attempt to regain the speed record for the England-Australia flight.

Contrary to first reports, the body was not burned. It was mangled, however, and thrown thirty feet from the plane on the mountain, Varco Di Rocca.

Formost Meats Will Go to West Indies

The Jacob Forst Packing Company, Inc., of 114 Abeel street today reported that next Wednesday a shipment of its Formost hams and bacon will go out on the steamship Haiti to two towns in the French West Indies—Bordeaux on the island of Martinique and Picard on the island of Guadeloupe. The meats will be sold in quality markets. It will take 12 days for them to reach their destination.

Twenty New Cases Of Measles Here

The measles epidemic in Kingston is gradually waning as is shown by the fact that during the past week but 20 new cases were reported in the city, which is the smallest number reported in several weeks. Since the first of January there have been a total of 1,155 cases of measles reported in the city.

National Ulster Co. Bank Stockholders Authorize New Stock

Adopt Resolution Authorizing Issuance of New Class A and Class B Stock, In Accordance With Plan Submitted By Conservator Nash.

A meeting of the stockholders of the National Ulster County Bank and Trust Co. was held Friday afternoon. There was a good representation of the stockholders, more than 75 per cent being present either in person or by proxy.

The meeting was called to authorize the issuance of the new Class A and Class B stock, in accordance with the plan submitted by Conservator Willis G. Nash, heretofore announced.

The stockholders adopted a resolution authorizing the issuance of the new stock, subject to the approval of the comptroller of the currency.

The stock has not yet been fully subscribed, but so nearly so that Mr. Nash feels that within a few days he will be in a position to take the matter to Washington and seek the approval of the comptroller.

The stockholders meeting adjourned to a later date so that should the comptroller ask for changes or amendment to the enabling resolution they might be made without delay and the expense attendant upon calling another meeting.

All depositors have now received notice of the plan which involves a subscription on their part to stock to the amount of one-third of their deposits. These notices have been sent out as rapidly as possible, beginning with the largest depositors and now all have been notified.

Mr. Nash states that the depositors have been responding very nicely and that apparently the plan is meeting with their approval.

MUSICAL GIVEN TB HOSPITAL PATIENTS

The patients at the Ulster County TB Hospital were entertained on the evening of April 26 by a musicale and reading by such well known artists as Mrs. Chidester, Miss Ethel Mauterstock, Miss Alice Trowbridge, Mrs. Harold Ford, Miss Margaret Smith, accompanist, Miss Walter T. Tremper. The following program was rendered.

Piano solo ..... Mrs. Chidester
Reading ..... Miss Ethel Mauterstock
Soprano solo ..... Miss Alice Trowbridge
Violin solo ..... Mrs. Harold Ford
Reading ..... Miss Ethel Mauterstock
Soprano solo ..... Miss Margaret Smith

The concert was given in the entertainment hall and by reason of the new elevator recently completed the majority of the patients were able to take advantage of hearing the delightful entertainment.

CHINESE FLEE TOWARD PEIPING BEFORE JAPANESE

Tokyo, April 29 (AP).—Smashed in a fierce assault by Nippon soldiers, Chinese troops are streaming in disorderly retreat toward Peiping from the north, Japanese reports said today.

The Japanese were said to be reorganizing their forces for pursuit toward the former imperial capital of China. A follow-up attack is planned, latest dispatches said, although the Japanese command previously had declared that its aim was merely to break up Chinese concentration immediately south of Kupeikow, the Great Wall pass north of Peiping.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR COMING WEEK

Following is the weather outlook for the period beginning Monday:

North and Middle Atlantic States: Showers Tuesday and Wednesday and again toward end of week.

Temperatures near or slightly below normal at beginning of next week followed by warmer middle and latter parts.

Ralph Decker Released.

Ralph Decker, 45, of Port Ewen, was arrested at Phoenicia Friday by Troopers Nolan and Dunne and was arraigned before Justice Theodore A. Voss, charged with violation of paragraph five, section 70, of the Vehicle and Traffic Law. Committed to the Ulster county jail, Decker appealed to Judge Traver, who paroled him till 10 o'clock this morning in custody of his attorney, William D. Brianier. At the hearing this morning Judge Traver found the commitment defective and ordered Decker's release.

LITTLE HOPE THAT 9-W WILL BE 4 STRIP ROAD

Albany, N. Y., April 29 (AP).—The Public Service Commission indicated in an order today that the state has little hope of financing a broad four-lane highway on the west side of the Hudson river between Albany and New York in the near future. Such a highway exists on the east shore, and a parallel highway on the west shore had been contemplated.

The commission authorized the West Shore Railroad to build a bridge only three road-lanes wide, across the West Shore highway in Esopus, Ulster county.

"Evidence shows that Route 9-W will not be widened to four lanes until after a three-lane highway is completed through to Albany," the commission said. "Funds for this may not be available for a considerable time."

Kingston Will Furnish 90 Men; County 35, For Federal Corps

A total of 125 men will be enrolled from Ulster county, including Kingston, for the Citizens' Conservation Corps for Federal Reforestation Work, according to an announcement from the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration, official agent in New York State for Robert Fechner, director of Federal Emergency Conservation Work, who has directed Matthew H. Herzog, chairman of the City of Kingston Emergency Work Bureau, to enroll a quota of 90 men; and E. W. Carpenter, chairman of the Emergency Work Bureau of Ulster County, to enroll a quota of 35 men. The notification to Chairman Herzog from Henry L. Hopkins, chairman of the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration, to begin enrollment of applicants follows:

"The United States Department of Labor has advised us that a contingent of 25,700 men is to be assembled in New York state as a part of the Citizens' Conservation Corps for Federal Reforestation Work. The State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration has appointed your relief bureau their agents for your welfare district and has assigned to you a quota of 90 men.

"Please begin immediately to enroll applicants who must be between the ages of 18 and 25, inclusive, from members of families already receiving relief from your bureau or from any private relief agency you may determine.

"Keep all completed enrollment blanks in your office and be sure none is given out directly to applicants. We will advise you by telegram when the Army Receiving Station for your area will be open and where it will be located. At that time, please be prepared to send all or any part of the applicants you have registered. In the event you cannot supply the quota assigned to you, kindly let us know by wire in order that we may make other arrangements."

Quotas have been set for 112 welfare districts cooperating in the statewide unemployment relief system of the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration.

A similar notification was received by Chairman Carpenter, except his quota was set at 35 men.

Governor Signs The Conway Bill

Governor Lehman on Friday signed Assemblyman J. Edward Conway's bill amending the election law in relation to voting by absentee ballot. The bill went through the Assembly and Senate earlier this month.

The new law says that a qualified voter residing outside a city or village having 5,000 or more inhabitants desiring to vote at a general election as an absentee voter must personally appear before the inspectors of election of the district in which he is or will be on election day entitled to vote.

The inspectors of election shall place upon the register the names of all such applicants for registration who are known or proven to their satisfaction to be then or thereafter entitled to vote at the election.

Such applicants for registration in lieu of applying for registration under the provisions mentioned may apply in person and be registered by central registration by the board of election of the county as provided in section 153-a of the election law.

The provisions of this amendment shall not apply to the registration of an inmate of a soldiers' and sailors' home, or to a person receiving treatment in a United States veterans' bureau hospital, or to a person in federal service, or to a student matriculated at an institution of learning located outside the county where the applicant resides.

ARETAS LODGE WILL ATTEND SERVICES.

The members of Aretas Lodge, No. 172, I. O. O. F., will celebrate the 114th birthday of the order in America by attending services Sunday evening in the St. Paul Lutheran Church on Hasbrouck avenue. All Odd Fellows and members of the Rebekahs are invited to unite with Aretas Lodge in celebrating the event. The members of the lodge will meet at the lodge rooms Sunday evening at 7:15 o'clock and march in a body to the church.

MOVE TO PUNISH THOSE WHO CAUSED DISORDERS

Des Moines, Iowa, April 29 (AP).—Iowa officials moved today to punish those responsible for disorders by farmers who abducted a judge at Le Mars and rioted at Denison where about a dozen men were injured when from 300 to 500 militant agriculturalists fought with state agents and deputies attempting a mortgage foreclosure sale.

Beer Meter.

Albany, N. Y., April 29 (AP).—A beer meter, to which only federal inspectors have the key, may solve for the alcoholic beverage tax bureau the problem of keeping an accurate check on the amount of beer that flows out of New York state breweries.

Goodmans Take Up Residence Here

Thomas C. Goodman and family have moved from Albany to Kingston and established their residence on the property of the new Wiltwyck Golf Club. Mr. Goodman said he will start staking out the greens, tees and fairways Monday, May 1, and that actual construction will begin at the end of next week.

Pass Inflation Bill, Defeat Cash Bonus

Washington, April 29 (AP).—Speedy House action was promised today to complete congressional approval and give the administration unprecedented machinery to inflate the currency and increase farm prices.

Concluding three weeks of turbulent debate, the Senate last night voted the sweeping power by 64 to 20 after defeating a soldiers' bonus amendment and authorizing the acceptance of up to $200,000,000 in silver on war debt payments.

Speaker Rainey will seek to send the omnibus farm relief-inflation legislation to conference Monday for adjustment of Senate and House differences. The House already has approved the farm relief sections, which contemplate price-lifting and mortgage-cutting through refinancing at lower interest rates.

The inflation legislation was added to the farm bill in the Senate, and gives the president a choice of methods for undertaking a controlled expansion of credit and currency.

In an almost running-fire of roll calls, the Senate rejected the soldiers' bonus plan by 60 to 28, approved the silver provision by 53 to 32, passed the inflation section by 54 to 21 and then rolled up a final, sweeping majority of 64 to 20 for the entire measure, including inflation.

New Uniforms for Kingston Police

For some time members of the Kingston police department have been antious to have the type of summer uniform changed. Recently the majority of the members of the department signed a petition to the board of police commissioners asking that the department adopt the type of summer uniform used by members of the New York city police department.

Friday evening the board held a special meeting to act on the petition which was granted. The new uniform will be found much cooler during the hot months as it will not be necessary to wear a coat. The policemen will wear blue shirts of various weights and with the shirt will wear a black tie. They will also be equipped with Sam Browne belts. There will be no change in the present type of caps worn by the police. The coat will be of the lapel style, similar to the coat of a sack suit worn by civilians.

Free Diphtheria Clinic on Monday

Another in the series of free diphtheria clinics will be held at the board of health rooms in the city hall on Monday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. Parents who desire to have their children immunized from the disease should bring them to the clinic that afternoon.

Washington, April 29 (AP).—Treasury receipts for April 27 were $4,553,874.61; expenditures $14,052,645.58; balance $280,339,133.88. Customs duties for 27 days of April were $15,593,499.22.

Taxpayers' Meeting.

An important meeting of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association will be held in the city court room at the city hall Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Coroner Humiston on Stand in Murder Trial Counsels in Conflict

Morning Session In County Court Taken Up With Testimony of Coroner, Who Investigated The Death of Uriah Quick.

Practically all of the morning session of county court was taken up with the testimony of Coroner Howard B. Humiston, who was the official who investigated the death of Uriah Quick on January 26, last, when the body of Mr. Quick was discovered down the cellar stairs of his boarding home. It was during the examination of Mr. Humiston that the first real conflict between counsel in the case took place.

LeRoy Lounsberry, attorney for Anton Haessler, one of the defendants charged with the death of Mr. Quick, inquired of Mr. Humiston as to whether a mark, even one made by the knot of a handkerchief, would not remain depressed if that mark had been made after death. The question was objected to by counsel for the prosecution and when Mr. Lounsberry inquired further in regard to the matter District Attorney Murray objected on the grounds that the coroner was not qualified to give an opinion and such opinion was for expert medical witnesses to express.

Conflict Between Counsel

Then Mr. Lounsberry inquired whether Mr. Humiston had not on April 7, last, told Attorney Roger H. Loughran, counsel for Michael Conner, the second defendant, that his experience had shown that a wound made after death would remain depressed and that in his opinion Quick was dead before he was put down the cellar-steps and gave for his reason the fact that the wounds on the body were not depressed except where the body had been resting on the cellar steps. This brought forth objection from the prosecution and counsel engaged in some discussion on the matter. Mr. Murray objected to the question and asked the court to instruct Mr. Lounsberry not to sum up his case at the time. The objection was sustained by the court.

Mr. Lounsberry had previously asked Mr. Humiston if in his opinion Mr. Quick was dead before his body reached the cellarway. This question was put after the coroner had replied that he observed swollen wounds on the body and that the depressed wounds were on the body where it had rested on the cellar steps.

The coroner was not permitted to answer the question as to whether Mr. Quick was dead when the body was placed down the cellar steps when Mr. Murray objected to the coroner giving testimony which was of an expert nature which only a physician could state.

When court opened Graver Smith was on the stand for cross examination by Mr. Lounsberry. He said he had known Quick and had worked five years ago with him at Canron Lake Farms. He described a blood spot on the edge of a linoleum mat on the dining room floor.

Coroner Humiston Testifies.

Mr. Humiston followed on the stand. He testified he was a coroner of the county and an undertaker and during his experience as such had assisted or taken care of seven or eight thousand bodies. He told of arrival at the Quick place on January 26 and described the position of the body as had other witnesses. He knew Quick. On the cellar steps, about mid-way down someone picked up a pair of eye-glasses with one lens missing. He observed blood on the first three steps from the top and some on the stone under Mr. Quick's head. The body he said was in the same condition at his undertaking parlors as when removed from the home. He identified pictures taken of the body next day and said the condition was the same. He identified the clothes.

Blood Stained Towel.

An examination in the Quick kitchen he said disclosed a blood-stained towel back of the stove and there was also blood on the door casing leading outside to the front porch. This was both inside the house and outside and was about 3½ feet from the floor.

He too, told of the pan of yellow wax beans on the stove.

In the dining room he found blood on the floor and someone picked up two large pieces of the lens of eye-glasses and several small particles of glass. There was also picked up a bar from a watch chain and a couple of links from the chain. It was near the glass and blood spot. He identified the glasses and the pieces of glass as well as the watch chain bar and links.

The condition of the body next day when photographs were taken was the same as when it was taken there. He identified the clothes.

When he examined the clothes at Quick's place after the body had been brought up the steps he found 24 cents in change, a small knife, keys, a watch and chain. There was no wallet. He identified the watch and chain.

Pictures of Body Offered

The pictures of the body were offered in evidence and admitted and shown to the jury showing the condition of the body when the pictures were taken.

Cross examined by Mr. Lounsberry the witness said the lens which was out of the eye-glasses was the left lens. Mr. Quick's injuries were about the right side of his head.

The examination in regard to whether Mr. Humiston had experimented

On Wednesday evening, May 3, the Immanuel Young People's Society will celebrate its forty-fifth anniversary. This event will mark the completion of 45 years of active service in the church. The members of the society will, on this evening, gather in the hall to enjoy a banquet which will be prepared by the committee. Gus Wiedemann will act as toastmaster for the occasion. Members are requested to return the cards which have been mailed to them as soon as possible. A social hour will follow the banquet.

The District Executive Board, at its meeting, decided to accept the invitation of the Young People's Society to hold the annual summer outing at Hasbrouck Park. This outing will take place on July 30, instead of July 9, as previously announced. This is quite an undertaking for one society but the officers of the society feel sure that with the cooperation and support of every member the outing will be a very successful affair. The Rev. Mr. Giesse of Utica has been chosen by the board as the speaker for the sunset vesper service and the Rev. Mr. Griessel of Albany as alternate. The president of the district will also appoint a recreation committee in the near future to arrange for a baseball game and various other forms of amusement for both young and old. Hasbrouck Park has already been secured for this Sunday by the district and we take this opportunity of thanking the Board of Public Works for their kind consideration to our request.

The Pre-Convention Bulletin as released by the Albany district executive board has been distributed to all the members of the League and we feel sure that from the information contained therein the members who attend the convention will be sure of a good time. We hope that the so-called "depression" will vanish before June so that Kingston will be assured of a large representation at the convention. The date—June 10 and 11. The place—St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Albany.

The Junior Society held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, April 24. At this meeting the society was privileged to have as its guests several visitors from Albany, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. William Stieve, William Gottschalk and two Juniors from Albany.

Paul W. Harris to Be In City on Sunday

Sunday afternoon, May 7, at 4, Kingston people will be given an opportunity of hearing one of the finest young people's speakers at the Fair Street Reformed Church. Paul W. Harris, Jr., director of the youth movement for world recovery, and one of the secretaries of the National Council for the Prevention of War, will be present. Mr. Harris is a young man and speaks the language of youth. He was a student at Kentucky State College and Vanderbilt University. At the conclusion of his studies he served on the staff of the Boy Scouts of America, and engaged in the educational activities conducted by the Presbyterian Church of the South.

The Kingston Youth Council is exceedingly fortunate in securing a speaker of the ability of Paul Harris. He is at present on a lecture tour through the western states. May 3, 4 and 5, he is at various youth meetings in Connecticut.

Mr. Harris will speak at the Fair Street Reformed Church at 4, and will lead a discussion forum at the Y. M. C. A. for men at 9 p. m.

Inaugural Date on Sunday

The first inaugural date to fall on Sunday was March 4, 1821, the date of Monroe's second inaugural. Chief Justice Marshall advised that the oath be postponed until Monday, and this course was followed, the Presidency being technically vacant for 24 hours.

Testimony Continues In Quick Action

Friday afternoon two witnesses in the Quick murder case now on trial in county court before Judge Traver testified that on the night of January 26 when Quick's body was found in the cellar-way leading from his front porch to the cellar, they entered the house and during an inspection tour found a bloody towel near the kitchen range and also blood spots on the floor in the dining room between the stove and the table.

Several witnesses testified that when the body was found there were blood spots on the soles of the shoes.

The afternoon session opened with Pierce Barley, the man who found the body, still on the stand. Cross examined Barley said he did not know Conner and had never seen him up around the Quick place during the year that Barley has resided as a neighbor to Quick. The last time that Mr. Barley saw a light at Quick's house was Sunday, January 22, about 9 o'clock. Next day he said he was engaged in drawing wood to Napanoch and this he continued to do all that week, making one trip a day. On Monday he looked up toward the Quick place but did not notice whether the cellar doors opening up from the front porch were open or not. They were trap-doors in the porch floor. It was about 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening when he went to Quick's place. At that hour it was dark and he walked up the front path to the kitchen door and saw the cellar doors open. He turned his flashlight down the steps and saw the soles and heels of two shoes on one of the steps. The soles were facing him. He could not say how far they were down the steps or on what step the shoes rested. He took no more time to investigate and did not go down to where the body lay. He recalled that the shoes were fairly close to him and well up on the steps. Mr. Barley then went immediately to Joe Solcberg's place which is on the way to Pataukunk about ¼ a mile from Quick's place. It was the nearest telephone. He said he stopped first at his house and then went on to Solcberg's after he and his wife talked over the matter. Mr. Barley said he left Solcberg's immediately before Joe did and went home. About 2 o'clock Mr. Smith and Mr. Brown arrived from Coroner Humiston's and they picked Barley up at his house and Joe Solcberg also went to Quick's with them. William Brown had a flashlight and he went down the cellar steps and looked over the body with Mr. Smith.

From where Barley stood he could not see what they did but they came up and went to Solcberg's and called Mr. Humiston, who arrived an hour later with Sergeant Hopkins and Trooper Lawson. From the time the body was discovered until the coroner came the body was not moved. It was brought up the steps after the troopers and coroner arrived. At no time did Barley observe the head.

After they had been down the cellar steps they all went into the house.

On re-direct examination by Mr. Murray, the witness said that on the second trip which Baessler made past his place on January 22, there might have been a second person in the car. In reply as to how he was able to see a light in the Quick home on January 22, the witness said the Quick house stood on an elevation and the kitchen faced the Barley house. He could see a light in the kitchen windows. He was positive Sunday night was the last he saw a light. As to whether the cellar doors were open prior to Thursday night when he discovered the body he said he could not say. He looked up toward Quick's place but did not notice the doors, they might have been open or closed.

Carrie Barley, wife of the previous witness, said the Quick house could be seen from her house. She knew Quick and Mamie Fish lived there, Mrs. Fish being the house-keeper. On January 22 Quick came to the Barley house between 12 and 1 o'clock and after talking for a time left. She placed the time as "about 1:30 or before". She said she knew Baessler and identified him in the court room pointing him out. She had never seen Conner and did not know him.

Asked as to when she last saw Baessler the witness said he had gone past her house in his car on January 22 "Between 12 and 1 o'clock after Quick left". Baessler was driving toward the Quick place. She said she did not know if anyone else was in the car or not. She did not see the car stop at Quick's. That was the only time she saw the Baessler car on January 22.

Mrs. Barley recalled looking toward the Quick place that evening about 9 o'clock and noticed a light in the kitchen. She said she never saw Mr. Quick again and Sunday night was the last she saw a light in his house.

Asked about Baessler's activities on January 22 she said she last saw Baessler "Sunday when he brought Mamie Fish up to Quick's". She said Mrs. Fish was in the front seat of the car. It was after Quick had gone home. She could recall no other car going up the road that day.

On cross examination Mrs. Barley said she had known Mrs. Fish about three months before January 22. She had seen her at Quick's place some time before that, some time last summer. The first she saw Baessler in the locality was last summer or last fall. She said she had seen Baessler and Mrs. Fish in his car "three or four times" and had seen Mrs. Baessler with Baessler three or four times at Quick's.

When cross-examined by Mr. Lounsberry Mrs. Barley said Mrs. Fish had never been at the Barley house. She said she had been at Quick's place two or three times but Mrs. Fish was never there on these occasions and she had never spoke to Mrs. Fish. She said she had known Quick some time before moving to Leibhardt. Her estimate of the time Quick was at the Barley house on Sunday was a guess, she had not looked at the time but she thought he had been in the kitchen talking perhaps a half hour.

Mrs. Barley contradicted her former testimony and told Mr. Lounsberry that when Baessler went past her house on January 22 between 12 and 1 o'clock he was alone in his car. She saw him pass but once that day and never saw him again until in court.

Mrs. Barley was positive she had seen lights in Quick's house on Saturday night about 9 o'clock but could not recall Friday night. On Sunday she also saw a light but Monday night she looked and saw no lights. She said the last she had been to Quick's house prior to January 22 was last summer and she had been there but once.

Examined again by District Attorney Murray he asked the witness which she intended to testify to, was Mrs. Fish in the Baessler car or not when he passed on January 22. The witness replied that she did not know.

Joseph Solcberg, Leibhardt poultryman and proprietor of Sun Dale Poultry Farm, was called next. He said he lived in the center of the Leibhardt "Loop" and could see Quick's house from his place although it was some distance away. He said there was a loop in the road which circled a low plateau and he could look across this low plateau and see Quick's place. The last he saw Quick alive was January 3 when Quick came to use the telephone.

On January 26, the night the body was found, Barley came to the house about 6:45 o'clock and wanted to notify the undertaker. Solcberg said he used the telephone and notified Coroner Humiston and then went to Quick's place walking up the path past the garage to the porch. He saw the cellar doors open and the body on the steps.

Solcberg said Quick was lying on his stomach with his head at the foot of the steps on the stone pavement. The clothing was smeared with blood as was the face and hands. He also noticed blood on the soles of the shoes and on the top step of the stairs. He described the clothing which Mr. Quick wore and when shown the clothing identified it as appearing like and being in the same condition as on the night the body was found. Mr. Solcberg said he remained at the place while the body was removed when the coroner and troopers arrived about 9 o'clock.

Cross examined by Mr. Loughran he said he had known Quick 15 years. He knew both of Quick's wives and also Mrs. Fish. He first knew Mrs. Fish about eight months ago. At times he saw Mrs. Fish with Quick in his car. Solcberg said he was accompanied to the Quick place by his brother Samuel of New York. He said he had not gone down the cellar steps but had gone into the Quick house.

On cross examination by Mr. Lounsberry the witness said Mr. Quick had brought his second wife to his house quite shortly after they were married. He though Quick and his second wife lived together but about seven weeks after they were married.

A couple of days before Christmas Solcberg was at Quick's and Mary Fish was there then.

Solcberg said after Barkey came and the phone message had been sent to Kerhonkson Barley left. The witness said he went out after and went to the Leibhardt bridge where he waited for the undertaker to come. There he met Brown and Smith and they went to the Barley home and picked up Barley and they all went to Quick's. The body was not moved until the coroner and Troopers came. After Brown and Smith arrived and made a hasty examination Solcberg said he returned home with Brown and called the coroner and Troopers. On the first inspection Brown and Smith did not move the body they simply looked at it and then called Coroner Humiston. He said he could not recall any blood on the steps except on the top step. He thought Quick's feet were on about the second step from the top and his head was down at the foot. The steps were very steep.

William Brown, chauffeur and assistant to Coroner Humiston, said he had been born at Leibhardt and knew the country well. He told of having gone to the Quick place with Grover Smith on January 26. They went up through Pataukunk. He had known Quick all his life. When he and Smith went down the steps he noticed the position of the body. The body was head first down the steps, the head was on the stone at the bottom and the body extended up the steps with the hands extended backward, palms upward toward the top of the steps.

He made an examination of the house while waiting for the coroner to arrive. The door was unlocked. In the kitchen the fire was out in the stove and also in the dining-room stove. In the kitchen stove he saw a crumpled outside carton package from Lucky Strike cigarettes. There was some wood ashes in the stove. On the stove was a pan of cooked yellow wax beans.

In the dining-room he found nothing in the stove but ashes. There were several spots of blood on the floor.

In the kitchen there was a towel on the rack and it was spotted with what appeared to be blood. Objection was made to the description of the spots as "blood" and the witness said it appeared to him to be blood. On the table was a loaf of bread with a few slices cut off. In the kitchen there were also a couple of spots on the floor which he took to be blood.

He said the clothing on the body at Kerhonkson in the undertaking parlors were the same as when found at Leibhardt. Mr. Brown identified pictures of the body and said they showed the body as it appeared when first found.

Brown said he had known Baessler for at least three or four years and also knew Mamie Fish. He could not recall if he had seen them on January 22 or not.

Cross-examined, he said he had known Baessler since he had been in Kerhonkson, it might be longer than three or four years. He knew Conner longer and knew him when he worked for Preston Davis.

The cigarette carton in the stove at Quick's place was not burned.

Next came Grover Smith of Kerhonkson who worked at times for Mr. Humiston. He had known Quick five or six years. He described the position of the body as had Brown. The hands he said were outstretched upward, behind the body with the palms upward. He too told of blood spots on a towel in the kitchen and also of blood spots between the table and stove in the dining room which adjoins the kitchen. He had not looked in the kitchen stove.

Mr. Smith identified the clothing and said they appeared now in the same condition as when he saw them on the body at Leibhardt the night the body was found. Pictures of the body he identified and said they showed the body as it had been when he first saw it.

Mr. Smith saw no blood spots on the kitchen floor but said the spots on the towel in the kitchen he took for blood. He also saw blood on the top step of the cellar stairs.

After Mr. Loughran's cross examination was concluded court recessed until this morning at 10 o'clock when Mr. Lounsberry continued his cross examination of the witness.

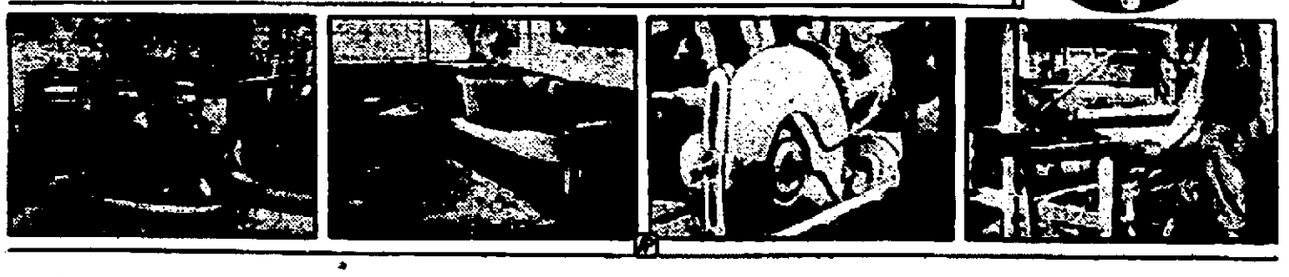
Tame The Machine, Make It Support You

Economist Puts Idea To Work, Sees It As Future Way Of Living



Ralph Borsodi is one economist who doesn't look on the machine as a modern menace—at least not in the home that he and his boys built at Suffern, N. Y. It's a sort of machine age in miniature, a little industrial world in which he and his family let mechanical gadgets do the work while they enjoy the resulting leisure.

Flour and meal are produced from the grist mill (upper left), the food in the picture below it is all "home-made," as is the furniture in the Borsodi living room. The motor-driven saw and the fly shuttle for weaving the household cloth are other aids. Borsodi thinks that in time the rest of the world is likely to come around to the same way of living.

Suffern, N. Y. (AP).—Ralph Borsodi has domesticated, completely tamed the machine.

Borsodi is an economist who about 14 years ago went back to the country—two hours from New York city—with the machine, not as a hermit-philosopher but simply in search of comfort and security for his family.

Calls It Best Life.

Now he's convinced that the extensive use of machines, supplemented by farm animals and a garden, produces a better and more economical way of living than possible in the usual city existence—and, because of the machine, without drudgery.

In 1929, at prosperity's height, Borsodi published a book entitled "This Ugly Civilization," citing the result of the experiment to date. Borsodi says reviewers were kind but some others laughed out loud. Today Borsodi says he wonders whether they still are laughing. The book has been republished.

A Mechanical Household

Here is part of what the Borsodi family—husband, wife and two children—does today:

It weaves cloth, grinds grain into flours, cans meats and vegetables, pumps, pipes and heats water by electricity, cooks by electricity, cultivates with a tractor, mows with a gasoline lawn mower, and does the multiplicity of other household tasks with machinery, gasoline and electric.

Borsodi estimates there are some 50 electric and gasoline motors on his place, motors running everything from vacuum cleaners to an electric saw. Borsodi and his boys have built their own nine-room house, two cottages with stone picked up in clearing fields, a swimming pool, a tennis court, a boat and a number of other items.

For the first two years of the experiment Borsodi commuted to New York four hours a day, earning only a moderate income. He had little original capital for his venture, but saved enough by growing his own food and avoiding high city cost to mechanize the house.

Machines Increase Savings.

Every additional machine brought more savings because the time saved gave more time for other productive pursuits. For instance, the electric food mixer saved time which might be used for weaving cloth; the electric mangle for ironing saved time for canning more food, and so until almost every necessity of life and a good many of its luxuries were produced at home.

$2500 Income Needed at Start

Perhaps two-thirds of Borsodi's time was used for work on the homestead, the other third to produce what little cash income was needed.

He estimates that a family, even a couple, with a $2,500 income can save half that sum the first year to buy the machinery necessary to make a start.

Borsodi envisages another industrial revolution in which machinery, having proved production in the home cheaper than in the factory, will bring men back from the factory to the home.

TRUTH TO GERMANY.

Physical violence and barbarity to Jews in Germany seem to have ceased, but other forms of persecution continue, many of them peculiarly cruel. Jews are ousted from professions and public office. Jews in general are neither allowed to earn a living nor to leave the country to earn a living elsewhere. On every side they face a wall of discrimination and humiliation.

Outside opinion is, for the most part, shut off from the German public. Two Americans, however, recently bearded the Nazi lion in his den with such plain speech as present-day Germans are not accustomed to. They were General Herman A. Metz, former Controller of New York city, and Victor Ridder, New York publisher, both non-Jews of German blood. Speaking in Berlin, in the presence of some of the government officials, General Metz reminded the Germans that the boycott is a two-edged sword, and said:

"In this day and age the world cannot tolerate religious and racial persecution. We in America protest against anything that is inhuman. This is a sentiment held by every American, irrespective of race. If you persecute a people because of their race, you will have not only every Jew in the United States against you, but also every Christian—in short, every decent American.

We hope and believe Germany is coming back to sanity. If you wish to turn out the Communists, we are all with you. But when you embark on religious persecution, everybody is against you.

ELECTRICITY.

Dr. George W. Crile, one of the most distinguished American surgeons, has been interested for years in a special study of the electrical nature of man. He arrives at the conclusion that mind, as well as body, is electrical. Bodily cells are electric cells, strung together by nerve-wires. The brain itself, he finds, is a great battery made up of four quadrillion protoplasmic cells providing energy for thought. The white cortex of the brain is the matrix which records patterns. The adrenal gland is the "power station." "Thought is a pure electro-chemical action," he declares. "The dynamics of the brain seem to parallel the dynamics of the energy processes of non-living mechanisms such as the internal combustion motor or the elastic battery."

All this is interesting and illuminating. A thoughtful person may wonder, though, just how far it goes; how near it is to the final explanation; whether such a complex, wonderful electric plant made itself; whether it implies an electrician in charge of it; whether everything, as Dr. Crile believes, is electrical, and whether, as he doesn't seem to believe, there is an Electric Engineer creating and running it all.

CUBAN INTERVENTION

"Intervention Looms in Cuba," say the headlines lately. A situation long bad is growing intolerable to the Cubans; and we are so close, geographically and commercially, that it is hard for us to bear. Many Americans feel, too, that we owe a duty to Cuba herself. We assumed responsibility as a sort of elder brother when we freed the island from Spain in 1898. The "Platt Amendment" to the Cuban Constitution, in which the Cubans acquiesced, gave us a legal right to intervene if it should become necessary to preserve free government there. Many Americans and many Cubans say the time has come.

President Machado, if we believe his critics, grows ever more tyrannical and lawless, more ruthless in suppressing his political opponents, more destructive in his policies. Opposition, finding elective processes barred, has resorted to violence itself. The country seems to be entering upon civil war. Business is prostrated. The United States might be justified in intervening. Diplomacy alone might get Machado out and arrange a constitutional election. The chances are, however, that once embarked on such a quest, we should have to use marines or soldiers for police work during the transition.

We have much other delicate business on hand, most of it more important to us. We have done so much intervening in Latin-American countries, and incurred so much ill will and suspicion thereby, that latterly we have been leaning over backward to mind our own business where our Latin neighbors are concerned. We might persuade other Latin-Americans to do the job for us, or act through the Pan-American Union, to which we all belong. This is our American League of Nations. It needs work to do.

CORRECTING CONSTIPATION.

I was speaking to a service club one day and ventured the assertion that at least half the people when giving their personal history to their physician stated that they suffered with constipation and took laxatives more or less regularly.

A physician at the close of the meeting told me that he thought my figures were too low; that as the laboratory physician of a large clinic his records showed that not less than 75 per cent of the patients coming to the clinic for all kinds of medical and surgical attention gave a history of constipation.

Some of these patients try to solve the problem by using various drugs, gradually increasing the dosage, or changing to some other drug which for a time at least seems to be more effective. Others have found the use of high enemas, or colonic irrigation as it is called, a satisfactory method of getting rid of the wastes.

Now no fault can be found with the use of laxatives or enemas but they should only be used in emergencies, because the average man or woman who is willing to give this matter a little thought and follow a few simple rules can rid themselves of this menace to health.

It was never meant that the large intestine should be always empty or free from the wastes of the food. If this were the case then the intestine would be continuously active. As it is there is practically no movement in the large intestine most of the time, but three or four times a day a powerful movement of the walls of the intestine occurs which starts at the beginning and travels its entire length. This movement pushes the waste along by "a brief forceful movement."

This movement usually occurs shortly after a meal, as the taking of a meal seems to start the muscles working.

The average individual (not everybody however) can usually correct constipation by drinking plenty of water, taking a little daily exercise; eating foods with plenty of fibre or roughage—fruits with skins on, dried fruits, seedy fruits, pears, apples, peaches; vegetables such as beans, peas, corn, raw cabbage, tomatoes, carrots, spinach, cauliflower; and by the use of whole grain cereals.

Remembering that there is this general tendency to bowel movement three or four times a day and establishing the habit of taking advantage of it, should be very helpful in correcting constipation.

Rock School 4-H Drum Corps will play in Catskill Saturday, May 6.

Many Names for Flicker

The bird commonly known as the flicker boasts an astounding number of names in the various districts in which it is found—approximately 140. About a fifth of these are thought to have been suggested by its call, among such being flicker, hittock, pee-at, wake-up, whicker and yucker.

The White Cockatoo

by Mignon G. Eberhart

ETHEROLE: Sue Tally, Jim Sanborn and Jo detectives David Lorn have decided that the murder of the Russian, the attempt on Sandra's life, and the attempted abduction of Sue all are part of a plot to secure the token by means of which Sue must prove title to her share of her father's millions. But they are unable to find a clue to the identity of the murderer. Marcel, porter in the Etoile French hotel which is the scene of the tragedy, suddenly volunteers to tell Sandra what he knows.

Chapter 24
THE SHOT.

"FIRST," Marcel said—he would not be hurried, and I thought he had rehearsed the whole telling of his tale, and his bright eyes were sparkling—"first, the towels.

"There were used towels in an unused room the morning after the murder. There was also a round—" he described it with his lively little hands—"hollow on the elderdown as if someone had sat there for a moment. I ask you—who was that?" I started to speak and checked myself for fear he would stop if I interrupted.

"Then," he held up two fingers. "Second. Father Robart was not sick during the night. I was not with him. I slept. Wait—you will ask why I permit the police to think I was with him. But what would you?

"He, a holy father, to ask such a small favor of me and me refuse. Never! And for the police——" He shrugged his shoulders in a manner which left little doubt as to the opinion he held of the police.

"Then, third——" He paused and then went on slowly: "It is of Miss Tally, and you will know what to do. There is danger. Danger of the gravest."

Afterward it seemed to me I had been faintly conscious of some sort of murmuring sound, but I actually heard only the words coming from the little porter's mouth.

"Third," he said, "I saw that night——" And then it happened.

Though I didn't know at once what had happened. I was only conscious of a sharply spitting sound and a smell, and of Marcel's face, which sagged and was surprised and held wide black eyes and an open mouth. Both his hands went to his back, and he tried to speak, and moaned and fell forward against me.

I caught him. He'd been shot. There was no one in the lounge—no one on the galleries, no one anywhere.

I eased him downward onto a chair, and then I knew that the murmur was the elevator. The shot had come from there, and the elevator was crawling upward toward the first gallery.

I stepped backward until I could see the entrance from the elevator to the first gallery, and the entrance to the second gallery.

The thing crawled upward. The cage was dark. The two little doors blank.

It neared the first gallery. Would it stop there or go on?

The elevator slowly came to a stop. There was for a moment nothing but silence; then the doors trembled.

The narrow black space between them widened almost imperceptibly.

Curiously, I heard the shot and felt the hot sting in my shoulder before I saw the muzzle of the revolver. Then things happened all at once.

I SAW the short nose of a revolver poking out from behind one of the little doors. I was conscious of a furiously sharp pain in my shoulder somewhere, I was dodging instinctively, and there was the sound of another shot. The door to the lobby was just behind me, and I had leaped to shelter behind the wall and, using the key board for a shield, was peering around it, determined to see who was in the elevator.

I saw the gleam of the revolver flying through the air downward, but not the arm that had thrown it. It fell with a clatter on the floor of the lounge, and at the very instant that I was leaning forward, sure now of seeing the murderer, someone seized me from behind; I struggled, twisting, straining my eyes toward the doors of the elevator.

But I was jerked aside.

There were two policemen hanging to my arms and my waist, and the more furiously I struggled and tried to make them understand that the murderer was in the elevator and that he was even now escaping, the more energetically they pulled me away from where I could see.

My shoulder hurt like hell; I was cursing with rage and pain and baffled fury, another policeman was running into the lobby from outside, and a woman was screaming from somewhere in the well of the lounge.

It was the screaming that drew one of the policemen into the lounge; at his shout the two holding me dragged me after them to the door again and then into the lounge. Mrs. Byng, hanging over the gallery rail, stopped screaming to stare, and then suddenly people were coming. Lorachiem and Grethe and little Sue with her face like chalk were running along the gallery and down the stairs and into the floor of the lounge.

All at once the lounge was crowded. Even the priest he turned up, panting, his red beard agitated, and Lorn, breathless, was hurrying through the lobby and was at my side, and the little maid, Marianne, was kneeling and sobbing, and the center of it all was the small white-aproned figure sprawling in the frivolous wicker chair.

In all the commotion and hubbub and torrents of French and Marianne's sobs, it was Lorn who remained fairly cool, and I'm sure it was Lorn who kept them from dragging me immediately to jail. I don't know what he said, though I guessed, from the way he pointed at my shoulder, and the blood that was soaking my coat, and the lack of powder burns.

One of the policemen had picked up the gun and was holding it gingerly by the tips of his fingers when Lorn suddenly turned toward me.

"Have you touched the gun?" he barked sharply. He was, under fire, like another man, quick, sharp, decisive, his eyes no longer dull.

"No." That much I was sure of. "Whoever was in the elevator threw it on the floor."

"In the elevator? What do you mean? Tell me quickly."

I TOLD him quickly, and one of the policemen ran upstairs to the elevator. The two remaining still held me tightly, as if that were the only thing they understood must be done.

And just then Sue perceived my wounded shoulder. (She'd been stooping over Marianne, and there were tears on her white face when she turned). She came swiftly to me and put her hands on my arms and said something quickly to the police and I thought pleadingly. But they would not relinquish their hold.

I was beginning by that time to feel a little giddy and sick. Lorn said:

"Leave it to me. I may be able to get you off. Your fingerprints can't be on the revolver, and there are no powder burns so you couldn't have done it yourself. Your being wounded may help."

It must have been only a few moments before more policemen arrived, and all at once policemen were searching the hotel, and I was being questioned at length.

It developed there were no fingerprints to be found on the revolver at all. Thus it argued that the murderer had worn gloves. It was at this point that I and my clothes and the lobby and the lounge and finally even the elevator were thoroughly searched for gloves, and to my great relief no gloves were found.

They seemed to be talking of it heatedly when the doctor arrived. He examined the little huddle on the chair first and very swiftly; ordered Marianne to a chair in the corner, where she sat sobbing helplessly while the slender body of the little porter was carried away. Then at Sue's request he turned his attention toward me.

Sue helped him; I remember the set look about her white face and the darkness of her eyes and the firm touch of her fingers. I think she was relieved at the doctor's muttered comments; and I'm sure I felt better when she said that the doctor had said it would be painful and I had lost a lot of blood but that there was no reason why it should not heal perfectly.

"What have they decided to do?" I asked her, glancing toward the police.

"I don't know," she said. "You see the police ran to the door of the lobby and caught you apparently escaping. They both launched themselves at you."

"And kept me from discovering the murderer," I said bitterly.

The police were coming toward me again. I said rapidly:

"Sue, you must take no chances. Marcel was telling me that you are in danger, when he was shot."

Before she could speak, they were questioning me again.

The snail can well lay claim to the title of nature's own sword walker. It needs no tricks or illusions, not even specially toughened skin, to climb right up on the sharp edge of a keen razor without so much as a scratch on its skin. An edge that would easily cut the human skin can be crawled on with impunity by the lowly snail.

The barnyard porker once played an important part in the watchmaking art. It was his bristles that were the life and heart of the finest timepieces—the hairspring. Until 1658 the skill of the metal worker could not match the ordinary hog in making hairsprings for watches. Since then, however, metal springs have been developed that the more accurate and practical than pig bristles.

Firemen will tell you that water is useless in fighting burning gasoline, but in a unique fire in Kansas City water proved highly effective. A 16,000-gallon gasoline tank, being drained through a valve at the bottom, caught fire at the valve. Firemen were unable to close the valve, and chemicals did not extinguish the blaze. One resourceful fireman poured water into the top of the tank. Being heavier than gasoline the water sank to the bottom of the tank where it entered the valve and cut off the burning gasoline.

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

AN INCREASING number of responsible officials at Washington have come to recognize in the administration's inflation program the one supreme issue of the whole Roosevelt scheme for national reconstruction.

This conviction arises from several causes and explains in large measure the extraordinary air of gravity which has surrounded every step in administrative and congressional consideration of the subject.

On the purely economic side there is a widespread feeling that effective inflation might make it pointless to put into operation other sweeping proposals which up to now have held the center of attention.

On the purely political side inflation is recognized as embracing such far-reaching consequences, one way or the other, that the political fortunes of the President might easily stand or fall by the results.

Pondering these things, the rank and file in congress and in the administration threw themselves into the discussion as soon as it started, with an impressive pre-occupation.

All-Pervading

Few really pretended to understand the considerations involved in inflation, and hardly any two agreed. Yet everyone seemed to sense the importance of the topic, however little he knew why it was important.

The controversy had some striking immediate results, along with its promise of future consequences.

Within the Roosevelt camp itself it aroused antagonisms which had been pretty effectually quieted ever since the inauguration.

One feature of the inflation measure, empowering the President to change the gold content of the dollar, narrowly escaped sudden death in the senate committee, with two former democratic secretaries of the treasury—McAdoo and Glass—voting against the administration.

Over on the republican side old-line leaders of senate and house signed a joint statement of protest that amounted almost to a party pronouncement—the first against the new administration.

Both of these developments deeply interested the politicians, who saw in them certain broad hints that the Roosevelt "honeymoon" might be drawing to a close.

Will It Pass?

Of course it may be that the prominence assumed by this question will be only a passing phase—that, having headed off the bills of the inflationists in congress by endorsing a permissive inflationary plan, the President may decide to make little use, after all, of the broad powers asked for by him.

It is certain some of those in whom he has shown great confidence in the past will counsel him against any sweeping action, just as others of his ardent supporters will urge such action.

So intense has been the period of legislative debate, however, that it seems certain any decision he may now make will be received with bitter protest by one or the other group among his followers.

The costume illustrated at left reflects the redingote influence and is developed in a lightweight navy woolen, and a crinkled crepe novelty in white striped with blue. The large button is red.

The evening frock is of black silk jersey net, the skirt developed with sunburst pleating. The bodice is swathed and indicates a lower waistline position by means of straps. There is a touch of strass embroidery at the front decolletage.

Frou Frou Folks Ripple and Rustle

Illustrated is a copy of a Chanel model, picturesque in type and showing Chanel's penchant for button details, also her liking for ruffles which this season she raises to a higher hip line. The ruche at the neckline may be released to form a cape at the back. The all-white theme is effective, also the definitely molded line and up-in-front movement.

Mix sugar, vinegar and water. Boil gently and without stirring until fine thread forms when portion is poured slowly from a spoon. Slowly pour into egg whites. Beat steadily until frosting thickens and is cool. Add extracts, frost cake.

Federal Reserve Act

The first federal reserve act was introduced into the house by Carter Glass in August, 1913, during Wilson's first administration and was a Democratic measure, though 38 Republicans and Progressives in the house and seven Republicans in the senate voted for it with the Democrats. It became law in December of that year. The sponsor of the bill in the senate was Senator Robert L. Owen.

Farthest North and South

The city of Miami, Fla., is farthest south and Bellingham, Wash., is farthest north in the United States. There are other places that are farther north or farther south, but none as large as the two cities named. Both have populations over 20,000.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

A Simple Frock

Designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 38 will require 3⅛ yards of material at least 35 inches wide. If made with the upper waist portions in contrast, it will require 2 2-3 yards of 35 inch material for skirt and lower waist portions and ¾ yard for the upper waist portions. The width of the frock at the lower edge is 2 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Y. W. C. A. Plans Its Financial Drive

The annual Budget Campaign of the Kingston Y. W. C. A. will be held the week of May 8 to May 13. In accordance with the present economic conditions, the budget difference has been reduced from $9,360—the amount solicited the last four years—to $8,000. Mrs. George F. Rice, president of the association, will be campaign manager and Mrs. Frederick W. Holcomb, finance chairman of the association, will be the finance director. The Executive Committee in charge of the work will be as follows: Mrs. Henry Lambert Bibby, Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler, Miss Annie K. Fuller, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, Mrs. John W. Matthews, Mrs. G. V. S. Quackenbush, Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. Myron S. Teller and Mrs. G. N. Wood. The organization of teams will be by wards this year and announcements of ward chairmen and workers will be made in the near future.

WEST SHOKAN

The town roads in District No. 3 under the able direction of former town superintendent John W. Kelder and his able assistant, ex-sergeant John Darling, U. S. veteran of three wars are being repaired. Superintendent Jordan is maintaining a watchful eye on the job.

Van R. Crispell and family of Brodhead Heights and Kingston, made a trip to Massachusetts on Tuesday to be present at the wedding of the second oldest living son, Raymond, of Kingston. Although "Ray" has been holding down a responsible position for some 12 years past he still has many old friends and fond memories hovering about High Point.

Ira Nichols of Brodhead Heights has recovered from his recent attack of illness and has resumed his position as road foreman.

The snappy return of winter with heavy snow squalls and whitened fields on Wednesday and Thursday sent those a skurrying for warmer clothing prematurely discarded during the recent mild weather. Surely winter is dying hard this spring.

Mr. North was tendered a shower of loving momentoes. Card games, general sociability and refreshments made for a well balanced evening's program.

John Thompson of Main street is recovering at his home from a severe attack of pleurisy.

On Saturday evening a family group consisting of Mrs. Mary Moore of Samsonville, daughters, Mrs. Genevieve McLean and Mrs. Mildred Allen, and granddaughter, little Miss Edith Allen, were entertained for the evening at the home of Mrs. Chase Davis in West Shokan Heights.

Mrs. E. C. Burgher entertained a prominent group of club members from Kingston at her home on Thursday evening.

George C. Bouin, well known Kingston broker, and family were entertained at dinner Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Burgher.

Carpenters Charles Lucht and son, Howard, are at work repairing gutters on the residence of Mrs. Sarah Dwyer in West Shokan Heights.

Fred Schoonmaker of Campbell Hall, Orange county, was one of the many to attend the funeral of Uncle Jake Crispell on Wednesday. Mr. Schoonmaker as a growing up youth resided in Shokan and was one of Uncle Jake's many friends.

Process of Decalcomania

The process of decalcomania consists of transferring pictures to marble, porcelain, glass, wood, and the like, by gumming a film bearing a colored print to the object and then removing the paper backing of the film by aid of warm water, the colored image remaining fixed. The practice, or process, was known in Holland in 1700, and the revival in America seems to be placed somewhere between the years 1862 and 1870.

Ladies' Day for the Shirtmaker.

New York—Who is your shirtmaker? A question women are asking each other now that the shirtwaist dress has been revived and that shirts are a part and parcel of the feminine wardrobe.

There are shirtwaist dresses with demi-bosoms with pleats, with barrel or with French cuffs demanding cuff links, with separate collars or no collars at all. There are many mannish details especially around the armhole. The belt, usually a separate kid or novelty one, is placed at either the normal waistline or on the hip bone. The material is any of the several varieties used by men's wear houses or it may be something else. Considering the leeway shirtings give us there seems little reason for going outside the men's wear field. There are shirting silks and of course fine shirting flannels, as well as the usual collection of madras, chambray, linen, percale and so on. Not forgetting seersucker, which is hardly a shirting but which men have adopted for summer suits.

The main thing to remember in getting oneself outfitted with shirtwaist dresses is that they should be easy to launder. What we save on dry cleaning goes to the laundry this summer.

No need to remind you of the necessity of stocking up on separate collar and cuff sets, or on some fixings for the neck. This brings to mind that the linen scarf, Ascot type, is one of the smart summer accessories to be worn with suits, top coats and jackets. These are in bright plaided effects, dots and other designs.

So many collarless coats bow at the front that it is worth considering having the ends of the tie different, which makes a most attractive bow.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Silk prints for hats is a style which milliners are offering. The field flower print on a black ground used by Mainbocher is especially remarked and may be worn with dresses or blouses to match.

A SHIRTMAKER FROCK

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

Stitched tucked bosom and crystal buttons lend interest to this canary yellow sports frock. The skirt features a large center box pleat and side pleats as well as a kick pleat center back.

Hats Are At Their Gayest Spring Mood

New York—Whether or not you are to be "queen of the May," you certainly can consider being garlanded with flowers. Paris is making a point of cultivating flowers. Reports from Longchamps where racing has been resumed, is that flower toques made a great hit, especially when worn with matching flower clusters worn under the chin.

It is rumored that brims will follow their annual attempt to widen and stay wide for the summer. But do not be surprised if the smaller hats continue to be the mass fashion and the capeline, or wide brimmed hats the charming exception.

In any event the new hats are small and large, very pretty and much easier to wear now that crowns are not completely sunk out of sight. It still looks odd to see a woman's coiffure from all angles and to find her tiny little hat sitting right on the top of her head, but, if her head is a mass of ringlets, you are bound to like it.

Although the fez or chechia type has affected our better judgment, the unobtrusive sailor is beginning to be generally recognized as a formidable rival. The toque and the turban have their usual followers.

There are plenty of hats that tip forward and are trimmed at the back, but this is a type you do not need to consider if you have any prejudice against it on the score of its being the matron's delight. Youngsters seem to take great delight in wearing it this year. There are saucy little hats trimmed directly front and those that need no trimming at all because of the artful way milliners have draped them to the head.

It's veil time now, as any one can see but once the weather gets to asserting itself even the diminutive veils now worn are quite likely to lose their vogue because of wider brims.

The Beach Dress Drifts In

There is a new beach dress that qualifies, simply because it introduces a kind of formal character to the beach dress that makes it thoroughly suitable for semi-formal evening wear at summer resorts. Its identifying feature is an ankle length skirt, without any of the informal, wrap-yourself-around lines of the devices of the more familiar beach dress. But the fact that both skirt and bodice—and the latter, too, in a simple way, has the feeling of a real dress—are done in plain lines, gives the costume an entirely new personality.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Fashionable Paris matrons are giving a big hand to Reboux's multi-colored feather toques, which are having a definite early spring success.

Paris is launching handbags in natural colored parchment and in linen, to harmonize with clothes in these light colors.

Prints have started out brilliantly in Paris, particularly those on light crepons in black on bisquit or pale cream tone. Large bunches of flowers in the biscuit on black ground are successful. Other color arrangements are small white flowerets on and colored field flowers with big white ear of wheat joined with linen on black ground.

Besides the black and biscuit—or alabaster—combinations mentioned in the prints, this house speaks of cherry and petunia used together as being a high style color combination launched by Vionnet that is causing interest.

Beige and gray as the important colors of the moment.

Color successes include rose, beige and yellow.

Among the interesting features of new fashions is the attention given to the coat-dress and the redingote—interesting because both these types are offered in more youthful expressions than has been the rule.

Suits continue to hold the center of the stage. The tailored mannish types are selling for better than any other. Swagger coat ensembles seem to be a close second.

The shirtwaist frock is invaluable for commuters, it being just as smart for town as it has been for country wear. The dress must have long sleeves for town wear.

A Worth Wardrobe for the New Ambassador's Wife

Madame Laboulaye, wife of the new French Ambassador to the United States, has chosen several Worth models for her American wardrobe. Included in it is a draped, black lacquered satin evening gown with rhinestone buttons that fasten the accompanying shoulder capelet. Others are an ankle length informal dinner gown of medium blue chiffon with back and sleeves of Irish lace dyed to match, and a gray wool coat dress trimmed with white pique.

Is My Face Red?

A difference in make-up between 1900 and 1933 may affect the fashion for high neckline, in the opinion of one Paris designer.

"In 1900, very few women used more than a light sprinkling of white rice powder on their faces; lip stick was unheard of. Nowadays, with foundation creams, ochre powder, lipstick, and mascara, a woman must be exceedingly careful in slipping on her gown not to stain the neckline. With the open-neck dress fashion, many women slipped their dresses over their heads before they made up their faces, but this is not possible with frocks that tie and drape around the throat.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

We guess the motor racers on the speedway do actually make better time, but we doubt if they look a bit faster than the grocery truck drivers look when they pop out of the side streets unexpectedly when you are out driving.

In case you are excited over the race between Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller for the title as the world's richest man—a race neither knowingly entered—don't wager too much on Ford's chances, for it must be remembered that no matter how many cars he turns out, there is that many more to buy John D's gasoline.

As a rule automobiles are as safe as the drivers.

Free air at the filling stations and hot air in other places are about the only free things one gets these days.

Truth crushed to earth will rise again. But a pedestrian run over by a motor car is certainly out of luck.

Speed Fiend—Well, I'm afraid that train will beat us to the crossing.

Passenger—That's not what I'm afraid of. It might be a tie.

When an automobile driver loses his head he sometimes thinks it is a pity he ever finds it again.

You cannot go far on sentiment. It is a weak battery. Charge it with conviction and arrive.

An old time business man drifted into our office yesterday and in the course of his remarks, said: "I remember when the farmers used to drive to town on Saturdays in their wagons and hitch their teams around the square. I could tell who was in town by their wagons, horses and dogs. But now I can't tell one fellow's car from another."

Walter—I don't know whether the girl really loves me or not.

Casper—Put her to the test.

Walter—How?

Casper—Tell her you've sold your roadster and see what she says about that.

A good business rule is one displayed in the lobby of the Belvidere Hotel, at Reidsville, N. C., which reads:

"We'll watch your auto, mind your children and argue with your wife, but we won't cash checks for strangers."

Henry Ford was recently fined for speeding through a small town in Ohio. He was riding in an automobile.

Fools rush in where wise men throttle down and drive slowly.

Blessed are they into whose dust God never moulded the wander lust. For the sweat from the brow of the men who roam, will turn to gold for the stay-at-home. And he who goes where the long trail calls will spend his life in overalls. But there are times, I will admit, when all my chores I long to quit and cast aside my heavy load and join the hitchhiker on the road.

The way to success is....Turn to the right and keep going.

Don't judge a man by his appearance. He may be supporting an auto.

If you want to take a good long ride and not have to worry about speed limits, gasoline, tires, spark plugs or smashups, take a street car.

One hazardous calling is calling a man a liar.

COMING EVENTS ON THE RADIO

Harry Horlick's A. & P. Gypsies continue rhapsodic concerning spring. As witness their program for May 1 when the Romany players will open their concert with the Second Hungarian Rhapsody by Franz Liszt. As usual with Liszt rhapsodies this one will start with a slow movement or "Lassen," developing into a lively "Frischka." Then comes the extremely spirited finale "Czardas." In the same class is scheduled "Liebesfreud." (Love's Joy.) that happy inspiration by Fritz Kreisler.

About Fifty-Fifty

St. Jerome mentions a widow that married her twenty-second husband, who in his turn had been married to 20 wives.

Cantata to be Repeated.

The Art and Social Club of Kingston will repeat its cantata, "Love Triumphant," by request at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church on Sunday, April 30, at 3 p. m. Henry S. Van Der Zee will conduct. The group will rehearse at the church this evening at 8 o'clock. The public is invited to listen to this cantata. Admission is free, but an offering will be taken.

Tariff Wall Kills Birds

Bird lovers of Europe are blaming the tariff for the death of 200 birds at the Czechoslovakian frontier. A consignment of thrushes, blackbirds and larks was being sent by rail through Austria to Prague. At the Czechoslovakian border customs officers held up the feathered songsters because they had no permit to cross the frontier. The birds were sidetracked and the consignors notified. When the proper papers arrived, six days later, the birds had starved to death.

Talks to parents

Effective Punishment

By ALICE JUDSON PEALE

Physical punishment by itself is only even momentarily effective the first few times it is used. Thereafter the child becomes calloused to it and is not in the least deterred by it from doing what is forbidden.

The only exceptions to this are extremely timid children and children who do not have normally vigorous impulses of their own.

Often, however, physical punishment is felt to be something more than a merely physically painful happening. It comes to represent in addition the terrible threat of losing parental love. When this happens such punishment is effective it causes a profoundly devastating emotional experience.

It impairs the child's self-respect and his self-confidence. It gives rise to a state of chronic inward anxiety which keeps him over long periods in a state of depression and fear. It tends, in even the least vindictive child, to foster feelings of resentment and hate and a desire to get even.

These feelings are the more genuinely harmful since they must be largely suppressed and the child feels guilty for having them at all. The sense of guilt over these revengeful wishes towards those whom he loves serves further to increase this original anxiety and may lead the child, in order to relieve his bad conscience, to court the very punishment which caused all his troubles in the first place.

It is clear that physical punishment, in these relatively rare cases where it is effective, achieves good behavior at an enormous price to the child's character development.

It may so damage his relation to his parents that he can no longer love them without hating them a good deal at the same time and so that they become for him the last people on earth to whom he would go for help and advice.

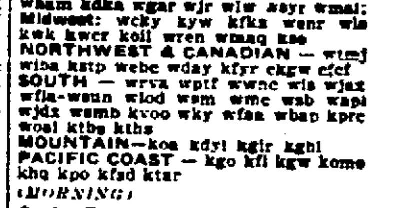
Deserts in United States

The most important deserts in the United States are: The Staked Plains or Llano Estacado of Western Texas and Eastern New Mexico; the so-called Great American Desert of Western Arizona, Eastern California, and Southern Utah and Nevada; Painted Desert (part of latter) in Northern Arizona; the Mojave Desert of South Central California. There are not sheer deserts in the sense that the Sahara is; that is, composed of nothing but sand. In all American deserts some form of plant and animal life exist.

When "Cowboys" Were Robbers

During the Revolutionary war the term "cowboy" was applied to robbers, usually of cattle and sometimes of other property, who infested the roads east of the Hudson river between the British and American lines. They professed to be Tories. A similar band, professing to be Whigs, called "skinners," plundered wayfarers in the same period and in the same places.

Sundown Stories



The Honeymoon

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Where are you going on your honeymoon?" asked Mrs. Quacko Duck after the wedding meal was finished.

"What's that?" asked Honey Bear. "It certainly sounds very lovely. Does it mean that we're given lots and lots of honey to eat and that we enjoy it under the light of the moon?"

"Now really, quack, quack," quacked Mrs. Quacko, "that's what it ought to mean, and you have the best idea of it I've ever heard."

Willy Nilly overheard this conversation and when the sun was beginning to go down over the Puddle Muddle hills he told the Bears to go over and sit in front of their cave.

Willy Nilly had put up a door plate over the cave which read: "The Cave of Honey Bear and Jelly Bear. If not at home inquire at Willy Nilly's."

But now Willy Nilly got some honey in the honeycomb and the two Bears sat in the moonlight in front of their cave and had honey. The others were all asleep now.

Out in front of the cave sat Jelly Bear and Honey Bear in the moonlight. The honey was all finished now, but they licked their sticky paws and found the taste very pleasant.

And the moon looked so golden that it almost seemed as though it, too, had been made of honey.

"Some day," said Jelly Bear, "when I become very rich I'll take you up to the moon and you can eat it all up. I'm sure it's made of honey."

And Honey Bear said to Jelly Bear, "Growl, growl, you make me so happy."

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—There's been a change in attitude on the part of a great many on Capitol Hill toward a tall, serious, silver-haired senator from Oklahoma since rejects of inflation of the currency have come definitely within the range of official sanction.

SENATOR THOMAS

And Elmer Thomas of Medicine Park, Oklahoma, is happy.

Senator Thomas has been campaigning for inflation for a long, long time. When he began preaching this sort of thing in the senate, he was regarded by many of his colleagues as an economic heretic.

They weren't always kind to him, either.

Dogged Persistence

But he plugged on just the same. At times he seemed rather pathetic as he stood at his seat in the rear of the chamber fighting a seemingly hopeless battle.

There are those who will tell you they've never seen Elmer Thomas laugh heartily. He is deadly in earnest and matter of fact. His personal appearance is in keeping with his attitude.

Straight as an arrow, always immaculately dressed either in formal morning coat and striped trousers or in a light, khaki gray suit, he has a stern face that attracts. He speaks slowly and distinctly, his strong voice carrying easily to the most distant parts of the chamber.

And he made senators listen whether they chose to or not. The first session of the last congress was ushered into history with Thomas conducting a filibuster in the senate. Single-handedly he tied up that body until the very minute that adjournment sine die came.

Knows His Drama

Yet for all his austerity and lack of humor, Thomas knows the value of the dramatic and makes use of it frequently.

Not so long ago he startled a complacent session of the senate by waving aloft a pair of ragged and patched overalls that he obtained from a destitute constituent. Later he donned the dirty garment and posed for photographers.

Because he wanted to get first-hand information on the bread lines in the big cities, one night he slipped quietly out of the capital and took his place in one in New York. He came back and told the senate about it.

"I've had to fight for every single thing I've ever gotten in the senate," he once said.

His most spectacular fight was for inflation of the currency.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Although it is probably true that few fans remember who concocted a screen story even if they liked it, here in movieland the cinema scribbler is not taken so lightly.

So important a little Napoleon of production is Darryl Zanuck, who resigned from his Warner Bros. post after that company failed to return to the full salary schedule, works on the principle that story is the first essential of a successful picture, and this principle finds concurrence among other movie executives.

Bill Of Complaints

That is why the writers who have joined the newly vitalized Screen Writers' Guild, more than 250 strong, regard themselves in a peculiarly healthy position to present demands to the studios.

This they will do in the form of a code, now being drafted, which will embody not only the writers' stand on current questions in the industry affecting them, but the accumulated grievances of their craft since screen writing became a profession.

These views, obtained by a canvass of the membership, include protest against mass salary reductions and against the proposed "Artists' Service Bureau"—and, in addition, a host of more or less trivial matters pertaining to working conditions.

Screen credits may be ignored by the fans who see the picture, but they're dearly prized by the men who get them, and they don't like to see their work credited to, say, an associate producer who happened to sit in on one or two story conferences with them.

It Irks Them

Since talkies made dialog important, writers have been more prone to resentment than before at the old movie custom of changing stories on the set. Dialog has to hold together, and when a director or a supervisor, who hasn't worked on the story, undertakes to "improve" it, the original writer often feels he has cause to squirm.

"And if the finished picture is a flop," as one writer puts it, "we take the rap. They're glad to give us screen credit then."

"We're not looking for trouble," says another, "but we want our rights."

And another: "Trained screen writers aren't as easily replaced as some actors."

Sounds ominous, doesn't it?

SHOKAN

Shokan, April 28—Mrs. Gould Personeus and son, Charles, and Mrs. Harriet Cunningham and son, Robert, motored to Cedarhurst, L. I., last Sunday to attend the 44th wedding anniversary of Mrs. Cunningham's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Reilly. At a reception, held at The Madison in Cedarhurst, the following members of the immediate family were numbered among the 44 guests present: Mr. and Mrs. John J. Reilly; Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Reilly; Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Reilly; Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Franklin and sons; Mrs. Harriet D. Cunningham and sons, Francis and Robert. Harry Binder, also a guest, as was Mrs. Dwight Dee, a former schoolmate of Mrs. Reilly, who with her daughter, Olive, came from Pasadena, Cal. Mr. and Mrs. Reilly, who have visited Shokan several times and have a number of friends here, were the recipients of many exquisite gifts, as well as sincere congratulations, on this anniversary occasion.

Herman Wendt has had the interior of his new refreshment parlor on the state road tastefully decorated in green and yellow and has a stock of goods ready for business. Mr. Wendt, who came here from Long Island last year, is popular with the people of Shokan and will doubtless meet with good success in his new venture.

Mrs. Nettie Jones, a secretary of the Mt. Tremper Rural Cemetery Association, Inc., advertises a meeting of the stockholders and other interested persons, to be held in Winchell's hall on Sunday afternoon, May 7, at 2 p. m. A number of out of town people, including several Kingston residents, have attended these annual meetings in the past, and their presence, together with that of several from this section, serve to lend a reunion atmosphere to the gatherings.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sampson last Sunday entertained a party of friends from Poughkeepsie at the Sampson farmhouse on the heights.

M. Cramer, of the entymology field force of the state conservation department, was a business caller in Shokan Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Cramer, who purchased one of the Z. P. Boice bungalows near Moonhaw, was engaged in gypsy moth eradication work in this section several years ago.

On April 27, 1865, the death took place in Richmond, Va., of William B. Lambertson. Young Lambertson, who was a private in the Union Army, enlisted from Olive in Co. D, 20th Regiment, or Ulster Guards, on August 28, 1864.

Leonard V. Ruckert, local groceryman and prominent Granger, has posted announcements of a spaghetti supper, to be held in the Mt. Tremper hall on Wednesday, May 3, from 5:30 to 8 p. m. The supper will doubtless be attended by a large number of local people as there are about 25 members of the Mt. Tremper Grange residing in the villages of Shokan and Ashokan.

On April 27, 1898, the funeral was held in Shokan of Miss Carrie Hill, daughter of Wilbur F. and Katherine Hill, whose home was on the south side of the Plank Road, a quarter of a mile east of the old Shokan post office. Mr. Hill was a justice of the peace in Olive and at one time served as postmaster at Shokan.

Miss Marjorie Martins of New York city is recovering from a severe attack of bronchial pneumonia, according to a letter received Wednesday from Mrs. Lily Martins by the young lady's grandmother, Mrs. Jane Stubley, of the village center. Miss Martins, who spends a part of her summer vacations here, has a number of friends in Shokan who will be glad to learn that she is convalescing.

Several from this side of the reservoir attended the funeral services for Jacob A. Crispell, which were held in the west side church on Wednesday afternoon.

The flock of sheep on the lawn of the Kenozia Lake Clubhouse attracts considerable attention from travelers on the north boulevard. Sheep have become practically extinct in this part of the mountains, although they formerly were found on nearly every prosperous farm in the town of Olive.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Floyd Terwilliger of Ashokan returned last week from an automobile trip to the Shenandoah Valley. While in Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Terwilliger attended the outdoor Easter service at Natural Bridge, a ceremony which impressed them as being very beautiful. They also were greatly pleased with the display of countless fruit blossoms throughout the valley, where peach, cherry and apple trees were in full bloom at the time of their visit.

The Ladies' Aid Society social held in the Reformed Church hall on Wednesday evening, April 26, was attended by about 50 persons. Songs were sung and a number of games played by those present. Mrs. August Pfaus, wife of the pastor of the church, had charge of the games, which were greatly enjoyed by every one. A picture advertisement contest was held, the winners in this event being Irving Weeks and William Tuceling, Jr., who tied for the first prize. A delicious cafeteria supper was served, the waitresses in charge of this feature being four young ladies who were dressed up as negro mammies. The party of Wednesday evening unquestionably was one of the most pleasing social affairs that have been held in Shokan in a long time. The net proceeds from the social amounted to $14.

Due to the change in time of the church service in the Mt. Tremper Church beginning next Sunday, the Rev. August Pfaus will be able to resume his Bible class in the Shokan Reformed Sunday school. D. R. Sampson, superintendent, cordially invites all adults who are interested in Sunday school work to be present at the regular exercises next Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock, daylight saving time, and join the pastor's class.

View 300-Year-Old Creed Book

Thousands of Sikhs, a Hindu community in the Punjab of India, have been flocking to gaze upon one of the historic manuscript books of their faith. The book, known as the Adi Granth, was on display at the residence of the Guru, their spiritual chief, at Kartarpur. The Adi Granth was written by the fifth Guru more than 300 years ago, and it is said that only two men have read it. The Sikhs originally were a religious community founded by Baba Banak, who was born in 1649.

Stonehenge

"Stonehenge" is a name that applies to the huge monoliths. About the half of the word "henge" there is some difference of opinion. The Anglo Saxon word "henge" means something hanging or supported in the air. It is possible that in some prehistoric time these great monoliths supported some kind of a ladder. Another theory with reference to the word is that Stonehenge, was erected to commemorate some act of Hengist, one of the early rulers of a part of Britain.

Dead Sea Fruit

Dead sea fruit, which turns to ashes in the mouth, is not a mere legend. It grows on a tree about 15 feet high, is a bright yellow color, and is about the size of an apple. It looks very luscious, but is often attacked by a large black and yellow cricket so that that whole of the interior becomes dust although the skin remains unharmed. Thus, when it is picked it turns to tasteless powder.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 29 (AP)—The Senate's acceptance of the inflation-agriculture bill set the signal for a fresh frenzy of buying in the stock exchange today, sending many issues up 1 to more than 5 points, in the biggest Saturday's trading in many months. The market closed buoyantly, with a turnover for the two-hour session of some 2,550,000 shares.

Traders who had put out short lines in expectation of a sharp technical reaction were severely squeezed in the new uprush, and a wide assortment of issues reached the best levels for the year or longer. Price averages were boosted to the highest level since last September.

Further indications of business expansion, in the week-end trade reviews, was also undoubtedly a factor in the upsurge. Reports from the steel and automobile industries were particularly encouraging. Further stiffening in steel prices was indicated, and estimates indicated that ingot production had stepped up to new high levels for more than a year.

American Can jumped several points in what looked like a short squeeze. Issues up 2 to 4 included U. S. Steel common, American Telephone, Union Pacific, American Tobacco B, Corn Products, Case, Western Union, and U. S. Steel preferred. Buying was well distributed throughout the major groups. Mail order and farm implement issues were buoyant. Motors were particularly active, with General Motors, Nash and Chrysler up around a point. Issues up about 2 included Santa Fe, New York Central, National Steel, American Smelting, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Westinghouse and others.

Commodities were buoyant as well, and second grade bonds soared.

Sears Roebuck's sales report for the four weeks ended April 22 showed a reduction of only 12.4 per cent from 1932, against a drop of 18.8 per cent for the first 12 weeks of the year.

Cotton jumped about $2 a bale, and wheat advanced 2 to 3 cents in the earlier trading. Foreign exchanges again strengthened against the dollar, with sterling up several cents, and French francs up several points, although failing to reach their recent highs.

IN ELEANOR BLUE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Even the first lady in the land has an eye to being practical when it comes to dress, for in choosing the material for the gown she wore during the inaugural ceremonies, she selected noncrushable crystelle velvet with emphasis on the word noncrushable. It was in Eleanor blue, as you know. The interesting thing about this now-so-popular blue is that it is decidedly a hyacinth tone, quite different from the Alice blue with which most of us are familiar. Now, all this preamble is leading up to telling you that the graceful seven-eighth summer wrap with its interesting scarf treatment here pictured is made of this new and very much-to-be coveted, because of its practical wearing qualities, Eleanor blue noncrushable velvet. Here is something else worth noting, the gown underneath is of white washable velvet, which again is most practical.

Saugerties Glee Club's Concert

The members of the Saugerties Glee Club, Robert Williams conductor, in their complimentary concert given at the Reformed Church at Saugerties, on Friday evening, presented a fine program of music.

Mrs William S. Eltinge was the club's fine accompanist and the club was assisted by Josephine Luchesse, coloratura soprano, accompanied by Marion Kalayjian at the piano, and by three boy sopranos from St. John's choir of Kingston, William Carpenter, Adrian Cubberly, William Whitney, with a number of incidental soloists as well.

Francis Reuther was the incidental soloist in "The Passing" by Purcell; the St. John's boys in "The West Wind" by Moore; Donald Fellows in "The Treasured Spot" by Mendelssohn and Joseph Craig in "Halleujah" by Beethoven.

Miss Luchese, with rare charm of personality and manner delighted her audience with every song she sang, but was really splendid in the aria from La Traviata, "Ah! fors 'e lui," and was given an ovation for her singing of that number. Her diction, vocalization and interpretation were all most satisfying.

There were two very big numbers given that called for a degree of musicianship and training that is rarely to be met with in the most seasoned and classic groups of singers. One was Horatio Parker's "The Leap of Russian Beg," with the incidental solos by August Franz of Kingston. It was gloriously sung.

The other, "The Crucifixion," by John Sebastian Bach, has never been so much as attempted in this vicinity before. The singing of this intensely religious and beautiful number was with a spirit of devotion.

After the concert, as is the custom with the club, a banquet and informal "sing" was enjoyed in the Sunday School rooms of the church. There were songs by the Colonial Choristers of Kingston, Mrs. Wicks, Mrs. Lieske, Vernon Miller and Joseph Craig, accompanied by Mrs. Eltinge; by a quartet of club members, the Messrs. Reuther, George DuBois, Donald Fellows, Charles Stanley, a capella; by the artist soloist and by the Saugerties Club augmented by members of the Amphion Glee Club of Newburgh.

On every hand, at the close of the concert, were heard words of the highest praise and congratulations for the club and its masterly conductor, and for the artist and other soloists.

Ellenville, April 29—Miss Edna France, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. France, of Phillipsport, and Royal O'Neil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O'Neil, Sr., of Napanoch, were married by Justice of the Peace B. C. West, Saturday evening, April 22. Mr. and Mrs. George Rothery were witnesses.

Simons-Marion.

New Paltz, April 29.—The wedding of the Rev. Victor W. Simons and Martha Marion took place in the Community Church in Glen Rock, N. J., on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Simons was a former pastor of the Gardiner Reformed Church and was well known in this vicinity. A number of friends from here attended the wedding.

Zupp-Van Keuren

Ellenville, April 29—Miss Edith Van Keuren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Van Keuren, and Alvin Zupp, son of Henry Zupp, both of this village, were united in marriage on Saturday evening, April 22, at the Lutheran parsonage by the Rev. Olney E. Cook. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hoar witnessed the ceremony. After the ceremony, the young couple left on a motor trip to Lake George.

Hamilton-Whipple.

Ellenville, April 29.—Miss Ethel Whipple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Whipple, of this village and Kenneth Hamilton of Monticello were married at the home of Judge N. D. Schoonmaker on Saturday evening, April 22. They were attended by the bride's brother and sister, John J. Whipple and Mrs. Earl Drake, of this village. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will make their home in Spring Glen.

Sterner-Schipper.

Ellenville, April 29.—Announcement of the marriage of her sister, Miss Abigail Schipper, to Lester Sterner of Buffalo, N. Y., was made by Mrs. M. Eugene Clark, at a supper bridge held at her home on Thursday evening, April 20. Mr. Sterner attended the Geneseo Seminary, is a graduate of Rutgers College and is at present superintendent of schools in Wantagh, L. I. Mrs. Sterner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Schipper of this village, a graduate of Ellenville High School, and attended Cornell University and New Paltz Normal School. She is now engaged in teaching in one of the Wantagh schools. The couple will occupy their new home in Wantagh shortly after May first.

THE JOINERS

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies

Colonial City Lodge, 733, I. B. P. O. E. of W., will hold a regular meeting in the lodge rooms, 103 Cornell street, Tuesday, May 2, for the purpose of conferring degrees and doing regular business.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, April 29.—Word from the Samsonville Heights section is to the effect that Bernard Kirchner, who purchased the Freeman Avery farm last summer, has sold it to a Mr. Flanagan of New York city, who is to use this scenic old home for a summer residence. Mr. Kirchner, the former owner, is now looking about for a suitable place to his fancy, and is favorably inclined to a location near Coxsackie.

Early last Sunday morning Raymond Markle formerly of Ashokan, who with his wife, the former Mabel Perry of the east side, drove up from Kingston and returned accompanied by Judge and Mrs. Henry Winchell of Rock Cliff Farm. Dinner was enjoyed at the new home acquired by Mr. and Mrs. Markle. Following the afternoon visit Mr. and Mrs. Winchell were returned to their home.

Harold Constable assisted with the drilling of the shale bank in Ashokan Heights used by the town workers for repairing the roads in that section.

Calvin Richard, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bruckner of West Hurley has been placed in the Kingston Hospital for stomach treatment in charge of Dr. Henry L. Bibby.

A very noticeable improvement is being made at the entrance of the Tongore road. The short up hill approach from the lower boulevard intersection has been filled in and widened.

Mrs. Hyatt of Kingston, sister of Mrs. Henry Winchell, is spending the week with the genial judge and Mrs. Winchell at Rock Cliff Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Van de Water of Poughkeepsie were local business callers on Thursday afternoon.

Judge Lester S. Davis with his truck has moved Mr and Mrs. Myron Teller's household goods from Kingston to their Watson Hollow Inn property, which they intend to use as a year round home, they having rented their Kingston residence. The Inn will open next month for the 19th consecutive season. Mrs. Edith Davis of Olive Bridge and Mrs. Lottie Campbell are now employed there.

People of Samsonville met in the M. E. Church Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing a Sunday school and Ladies' Aid Society. Some of the Samsonville ladies have been obtaining pointers during their visits to the local West Shokan Aid meetings.

The condition of John Thompson of Main street, who is ill of pleurisy, is not showing the rapid improvement his many friends wish.

Harry Braithwaite, nurseryman and florist, has made several trips to Long Island with Lauren Healey's truck, loaded with evergreens for customers there.

Miss Lydia Scott of Bonnie Brae, Shokan, called on her North Boulevard neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten, at Hemlock Knoll, on Thursday afternoon.

Garageman Henry Bell of Brodhead Heights, was employed Thursday with former Commissioner Egbert Boice's truck hauling shale on the cross road fill from Mrs. Ole Burgher's quarry at West Shokan Heights.

John Henriksen, Barry Van Demark and Judge Davis all have their gardens ploughed for spring planting. Constable Eddie Winkler with his team did the ploughing.

James Burgher and Edward Avery of Maple Dell took the day off Thursday and attended the murder trial in Kingston.

Community farmers located on the drier sections have been putting in good time with their spring ploughing and harrowing this week. Those having heavy clay soil to contend with are still occupied with fence repairing. Judge Fred L. Weidner is among this class.

POULTRY • FACTS •

POULTRY BUSINESS LEADS MANY OTHERS

Gross Value Exceeded Only by Corn, Hogs, Milk.

Feeding and care of chicks from the start in a manner to keep them going right ahead toward their fall job of filling egg baskets next fall and winter, or fitting them for dining table decoration in as short time as possible brings out the best skill and knowledge possessed by the poultryman and his wife.

American hens produce less than one egg a day for the entire population, yet the total is 2,700,000,000 dozen eggs each year. The poultry industry of the United States is estimated at $1,233,000,000 in value.

American hens and their products exceed in value all the cows and calves in the country—six times the value of all sheep and lambs, five times the value of all farm machinery—half the value of all the motor cars we ride in.

Yes, the poultry business is one of the principal agricultural industries in the country. Its gross value is exceeded only by corn, hogs and milk among the farm products. This husky farm industry nearly equals the value of all the metals produced in the United States in a year.

It is greater than the value of all the soft coal and is more than three times the value of hard coal produced. It is double the total of all postal revenues, including stamps, money orders and postal savings. It is more than one-seventh of the total stock of money in the United States. Certainly poultry raising is a leading industry.

Cull the flock carefully, so that only producers are left. Start with strong chicks of your favorite breed. Feed and tend them with best skill and care. The markets will always call for best poultry products, and will be ready to pay for them.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

"Henocracy" Plan Not Needed in Illinois

Technocracy, or perhaps it might better be termed "henocracy," has appeared in the poultry industry, but the owners of Illinois' 200,000 flocks need not resort to it in order to get the benefits, says H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. All they need do is follow the Illinois poultry sanitation plan as outlined and advocated by the college, he said.

"Henocracy" is Alp's name for the new system under which hens are kept in individual metal coops assembled in battery form. In Miami, Fla., for instance, 60,000 laying hens have been placed in batteries in a 500-room hotel. The concentration of so many birds in one building is made possible through the use of batteries equipped with labor-saving devices for cleaning the equipment and caring for the birds. The hen is even deprived of an opportunity to admire her egg, for as soon as it is laid, it rolls into a trough to be gathered.

The practical lesson in this for flock owners is the strict sanitary conditions under which the hens are kept, Alp pointed out. Much the same benefits which this close confinement gives in the form of disease and parasite control can be obtained by Illinois flock owners through following the college's poultry sanitation plan, he said.

Dirt Will Spoil Eggs

Eggs belong to the same food class as meat or milk. They are almost as perishable. Just because they are enclosed in a hard shell, they get rougher treatment. The egg shell is porous. Dirt and filth and mold and disease germs can pass through and spoil an egg. The water of the egg will evaporate through the egg shell almost as fast as if it were in an open pan. Many a housewife allows eggs to grow stale on a warm pantry shelf or to take in the odors of a foul ice box and then blames the farmer or grocer for selling bad eggs. It costs almost as much to produce a bad egg as to produce a good egg. Most egg losses, are, actually, preventable.—Montreal Herald.

Poultry Hints

Tuberculin testing of poultry is valuable and accurate for diagnosing tuberculosis.

Eggs supply iron and vitamins in the dietary, as well as other needed elements. An egg a day is food insurance.

Chickens like people inherit certain abilities to live and resist diseases and other things that cause early death and we call this vitality or vigor.

Birds will normally molt once a year. The best layers molt late, that is, in late fall. They are entitled to this rest and there is nothing one can do except feed well and give them an opportunity to get back their lost flesh.

* * *

Poultry flocks which are following the recommendations of the college, based on research, averaged 144 eggs per hen per year in 1931. The production records of general farm flocks were 105 eggs per hen the same year—a difference of 39 eggs per hen per year.—Iowa State College.

Might Grow Good Corn Crop

It requires from 50 to 60 acres to build a nine-hole golf course—depending somewhat on the shape of the property and on the topography. It takes about 125 pounds to the acre of a fairway grass mixture to seed the 25 to 30 acres of fairway.

Local Death Record

The funeral of Louis Vogel was held Thursday afternoon in the West End Funeral Chapel in New York city. Mr. Vogel was a brother of the late Abram Vogel of Kingston.

Maurice Wurts Phillips, a former resident of Kingston, died on April 25, at his home in West Philadelphia. Funeral services were held there Thursday afternoon. Mr. Phillips was a brother of Mrs. Guilford Hasbrouck of Livingston street, who has just returned home from attending her brother's funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Nettie McBee, wife of the late James E. McBee, was held Friday afternoon from 113 Broadway at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. C. B. Barrow, pastor of St. Mark's Church, officiated at the well attended services and led in the singing of two hymns, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Nearer My God to Thee". The interment was made in Mt. Zion cemetery and the committal services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Barrow at the grave.

George France of Pine Hill died there Friday, aged 75 years. Surviving are three sons, Edward W. France of Brooklyn, John T. France of Linderman avenue, Kingston, and Harry L. France of Pine Hill; one daughter, Mrs. Harry M. Johnson of 15 Grand View avenue, Kingston; four grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Lottie Webber and Mrs. Alice Harrington, both of Kingston. Funeral at the Pine Hill Methodist Church Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Interment in Pine Hill. Mr. France was a resident of the village for 55 years and was well and favorably known by many.

John Perkins, 78, died at his home in Tillson avenue, Highland, Thursday morning following a long illness. He is survived by two daughters, Daisy Perkins and Mrs. Byron Bennett of Highland, one brother, George, of Valatie, and two grandchildren, Daisy and Elmer Bennett of Highland. A son, Virgil, died during the World War. Mr. Perkins was born and brought up on the farm now owned by Louis Martin. Funeral services will be held from his home Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The Rev. Herbert Killinder will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Richard Braunstein of Highland Falls, formerly of Highland. Burial will be in Milton cemetery.

Ellenville, April 29—Mrs. Charles Citron died suddenly at her home on Center street Wednesday morning after a heart attack. She was born in Austria 68 years ago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Welchcenbaum. She had been a resident of the United States for the past seven years. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter in Warsaw, Russia, three sisters, Mrs. H. Pasternak of Rockaway, Mrs. Samuel Oak and Mrs. Zlata Weinrib of New York city, a brother, Morris, of New York city, and several nieces and nephews. Funeral services were held from the home Wednesday afternoon with burial in the Hebrew cemetery in Wawarsing.

Ellenville, April 29—William G. Damms, formerly of Ellenville, died at the Broadstreet Hospital in New York city on Saturday, April 22, after an illness of but two days. He was a son of Sarah and John Damms of Ellenville. His wife, who died some time ago, was before marriage, Susie Harrington. Surviving are four children, William and George Damms, and Mrs. Bradford Meyers of Ellenville, and Miss Harriet Damms of Wassaic, N. Y., a sister, Mrs. Mary Hall, of Ellenville, and two brothers, John Damms of Ellenville, and Fred of Fallsburgh. Funeral services were held in St. Andrew's Church Tuesday morning, conducted by Father Geis. Interment was in the Ellenville cemetery.

Funeral services for Grace F. Vanderveer took place Friday afternoon at her home in Port Ewen with the Rev. Philip Goertz in charge and the Rev. C. H. Polhemus assisting. The casket was banked in flowers which were silent tributes from her many friends and neighbors. Both ministers spoke very feelingly of the cheerful life and wonderful Christian fortitude with which she passed through her trying illness of long duration. Never complaining, always cheerful it was indeed a wonderful life. The home was crowded with her friends and relatives who came to pay their respects to a good wife, mother, relative and friend. Interment was in the Port Ewen cemetery. Henry C. Connelly, Louis Beers, B. H. Houghtaling, John Monroe, Richard H. Sleight and Adelbert Terpening acted as bearers.

Ellenville, April 29.—Benjamin T. Quick died suddenly at his home on Chapel street of a heart attack Sunday morning. He was born in Rochester Center on Febbruary 29, 1877, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Quick. His wife, who survives him, was Miss Nancy Bell before their marriage. Besides his wife he leaves four sons, Eugene, Willis, Louis and James, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. LeRoy Lounsberry, of this village; two brothers, Meeker Quick of Cornwall and Peter of New Jersey; and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Frost of Middletown, Mrs. Howard Gray of Rochester Center, and Mrs. Melissa Hendrickson of Kerhonkson. Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Perry Van Dyke, were held at the late home Wednesday afternoon, with interment in the Pine Bush Cemetery in Kerhonkson.

Ellenville, April 29.—Sherman Vedder, a former blacksmith and wagonmaker of this village, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. A. Kurka, in Huntington, L. I., Saturday, April 22, after a short illness. Mr. Vedder, who was 76, suffered a stroke on Easter Sunday, from which he never recovered. Born near Kingston, Mr. Vedder became a resident of Ellenville in 1877, and for many years conducted a blacksmith and wagon shop near the old canal. Six years after he had made Ellenville his home he married Mary Jane Yarrow, who survives him, along with a daughter, Mrs. R. A. Kurka, and a son, Wilson V. Vedder. Mr. Vedder was a member of Wawarsing Lodge, 582, F. & A. M., of this village, and was affiliated with the First Dutch Reformed Church here. He made his home in Huntington, L. I., for about 12 years. The Rev. Perry Van Dyke conducted the funeral services which were held in the Yarrow home on Center street, Tuesday afternoon. Interment was in Fantinekill Cemetery. Pall bearers were John H. Richards, Edgar Budd, Edward Riffert, Silas Van Wagener, William Hornbeck and John Terwilliger.

Ellenville, April 29.—Henry B. Lauber, former assessor for both the village of Ellenville and the town of Wawarsing, died at his home on Maiden Lane, Sunday, April 23, as the result of heart disease, after an illness of nine weeks. He was born in Dairyland, a son of George and Lois Lauber, in 1871. Thirty-three years ago, he and Mary Newkirk, daughter of William Newkirk, of Dairyland, were married there and made their home in that community until 17 years ago, when they moved to Ellenville. Mr. Lauber was assessor for the town of Wawarsing for a term of years, expiring in 1917. A few years later he was appointed to the same office by the village of Ellenville. For the past 13 years Mr. Lauber had been a guard at the Institution for Male Defective Delinquents in Napanoch, and before that had owned and operated a hardware business as well as a lumber and grist mill here. He is survived by his mother; his wife; two sisters, Mrs. William Schwer of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Susan McDowell, of Ellenville; and a daughter, Mrs. George Davenport, of Kingston. Special services were held at the home Tuesday evening by the Jr. O. U. A. M., of which he was a member. Funeral services were held there Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. R. B. Crispell of Poughkeepsie, who performed the marriage ceremony 34 years ago for Mr. and Mrs. Lauber, was in charge of the funeral services. Guards at the Napanoch Institution attended the funeral in a body and four acted as ball bearers. Interment was in the Fantinekill Cemetery.

The church was tastefully decorated with spring flowers.

The bride wore white satin. The lace on her veil is a family heirloom, having been worn by the bride's grandmother at her wedding. The matron of honor and the bridesmaids wore old-fashioned dresses of net in pastel shades and carried formal bouquets.

Mrs. Edwin Hilbert, of Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Ila M. Haulenbeek, sister of the groom, Mrs. W. Warren Ingalsbe, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Donald Young of Poughkeepsie, and Miss Ruth Bell of Yonkers, classmates of the bride. The best man was W. Warren Ingalsbe, brother of the bride. The ushers were Frederick Snyder of Kingston, Bernard Yoepp of Hurley, Clyde Gardner of Saugerties, and Harry Goldsworthy of Kingston.

The bride was graduated from Russell Sage College, Troy, in 1928, and since that time has been connected with the Provident Mutual Insurance Company in Albany. Mr. Haulenbeek has recently been made the commercial representative of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company in Catskill.

After the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bride for the wedding party and the immediate families. Upon their return from their weding trip Mr. and Mrs. Haulenbeek will reside at 83 Summit avenue, Catskill.

Animal Characteristics Much Like Those of Men

Animal personalities vary as much as human personalities. No two animals will react to the same stimuli in exactly the same manner. Neither can all leopards, for instance, be judged as one. I have had leopards as pets, notes a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine, which were as fond of me and nearly as trustworthy as a dog. I have also had leopards that were the incarnation of rage and vindictiveness.

It is possible, however, to separate animals into general classifications as regards temperament. Leopards are excitable and nervous, given to violent outbreaks. They are easily frightened and, although their fear often leads them to attack, it is a sort of desperation because of their nervousness and thoughtlessness. Lions are given to terrible bursts of fury, but it requires more than and cause to start a lion than a leopard. Lions think over a situation before plunging. Leopards fight at the drop of a hat—or less.

Cheetahs, although not strictly members of the cat family, exhibit the temperamental qualities of both the lion and leopard. They are very nervous, but at times have a calmness and repose suggestive of lions. When tamed and accustomed to humans, cheetahs can be affectionate and docile. This is a trait of the lion.

Normandy Dons Festival Attire

Greets Spring With Quaint Age-Old Ceremonies.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

NORMANDY is planning for apple blossom time. Like Winchester, in the Valley of Virginia, and other great apple-growing regions of America, Normandy fares forth in festival attire when the buds of its famous apple trees burst in the spring.

Although the French are largely a wine-imbibing people, the natives of Normandy drink apple cider. There, you can't eat a meal without cider, you can't be born without cider, and you can't get married or die without cider. The old duchy, slightly smaller than the state of Maryland, is one huge orchard.

Even "When it's apple blossom time in Normandy," however, the duchy has many world-famous spots that also attract the attention of the traveler—Rouen, Deauville, Cherbourg, Havre, Bayeux, Honfleur, Dieppe, Falaise, Alencon.

Northmen swooping down, raiding, destroying, but finally settling on the land and giving it a softened form of their name; stalwart son of duke and tanner's daughter crossing the channel to make world history at Hastings; Norman dukes reigning in England; the king of the English reigning in Normandy. Armored knights clanking about, in London, Sicily, Naples, at the tomb of Christ. The Maid burnt at the stake. Daring sons of Normandy roaming the seas to fish, to explore and colonize unknown lands, from Newfoundland to the Antarctic, to the South Seas, around the world. Normans building lordly castles, chateaux, cathedrals, and abbeys of distinctive "Norman architecture," painting pictures, writing poetry, plays, and novels of enduring fame. Poussin and Millet, Pierre Corneille, Alain Chartier and Malherbe, Flaubert, De Maupassant, and others—a Norman galaxy.

Normandy does more than sit around and dream of the long ago. Through Havre, second seaport of France; through Cherbourg, it saw some of the legions pass to the western front. It has greeted kings and queens, admirals and generals, and heard the roar of cannon salutes, the hum of sky craft. Through these ports today pass travelers from the western world, and processions of consuls, agents, buyers, salesmen, ambassadors of commerce of every kind—hunters all, scenting the romance and adventure in foreign trade, in anything from anchovies to antiques.

Dress designers, looking to Paris for the first and last word on fashions, send "scouts" to the golden beaches of Deauville and its less aristocratic vis-a-vis, Trouville. Here, where the beau monde disports itself in season beneath gaily striped tents, at the casinos, along the promenades, and at the races, the gods and goddesses of style display their latest creations on beautiful women.

Back from white chalk cliffs and sandy beaches stretches a green and pleasant land of winding streams, fertile grain fields and pastures, hedgerows, orchards, well-kept farms, and villages of thatched cottages. There are hills and dales and glens, forests and waterfalls, and the typically Norman long, straight roads.

Famous for Cattle.

And cows! Innumerable herds spot the lush meadows everywhere, but especially in the Contentin, the peninsula which points toward England. It has given its name to a Norman breed of cattle famous for beef, but more so for milk production. Paris drinks Normandy's milk and cream, and both London and Paris eat its fresh butter and cheese—Camembert, Neufchatel, Pont L'Eveque—with histories as distinguished as the duchy's own.

In one field men in blue smocks are loading hay into carts drawn by ponderous horses. "They're percherons!" exclaims the horse 'over from the Middle West. "My Indiana neighbor used to import carloads of them. Don't they remind you of Rosa Bonheur's 'Horse Fair?' As a matter of fact, most of her models for that picture were percherons."

Another Normandy product is its patois; one's school book French will not serve here. In the daily common speech one authority has counted some 5,000 words which are foreign to French.

On an early visit to England, the future Conqueror found Normans everywhere. There were "Norman prelates in the bishoprics, Norman lords and soldiers in the fortresses, Norman captains and sailors in the seaports." The Conquest itself affected every phase of England's national activities, especially its political and social institutions. One writer has called attention to the fact that for more than 800 years the British parliament has used Norman French when imploring the king to approve or reject its laws.

Though the old Norse language died out quickly in Normandy, it left tokens of its Scandinavian origin in such place names as Dieppe, "deep"; in Harfleur and Barfleur, fleur, the Norse fliot, meaning "small river"; in Yvetot, Ivo's "toft" or "inclosure." Another proof that this is the land of William the Conqueror lies in the fair-haired Scandinavian types which persist to this day in various districts.

As to the origin of the Norman's inclination to "hedge" on every question, let historians argue as they will, but it is a fact that one must usually labor hard to extract a plain yes or no from him. "Was the apple crop large this year?" You ask. His classic reply is: "Well, for a good apple year, it is not too good; but for a bad apple year, it is not too bad."

The tendency to avail himself of subtle distinctions may account for the Norman's reputation as a somewhat grasping character, and his fondness for legal forms and lawsuits has earned for him and his fellows the title of "the lawyers of France."

For all that, the Norman has his own traditions of fun and good fellowship. Remember, he likes his cider! And never Norman more so than one Oliver Basselin, he of the red nose, who sang songs in praise of hard cider long before Villon roistered and recited in Paris wine shops. Basselin ran a fulling mill near the little valley known as Vaux de Vire. From it his songs took their name, and these, in turn, gave rise to the corrupted term "vaudeville."

Natural Curiosity.

Thirty miles southwest of Vire, as the crow flies, on the border between Normandy and Brittany, towers the duchy's most imposing natural curiosity and its finest coastal monument of the Middle Ages—stupendous Mont Saint Michel. It is a granite islet 3,000 feet in circumference, girt with immense walls and towers, plastered with houses climbing up its sides, and the whole crowned with an ancient abbey, shrine of the Archangel Michael, saint of high places. Lovers of the unique find in its historical associations, in the grandeur of its outward aspect, an appeal and a fascination similar to those of Carcassonne.

East of Vire is Falaise, where Robert the Devil, the Magnificent, looked out of the castle window and saw Arlette, the tanner's daughter. Another story goes that he first saw her washing clothes at the fountain one day when he was returning from the chase. However, it was, her "pretty feet twinkling in the brook" led to her becoming the mother of the Conqueror.

North of Falaise is Caen, a Norman Athens and unrivaled center for the study of Norman art. Here the Normans' extraordinary faculty for adaptation appears at its best. Though they invented little that was new, they adopted from other countries, developed and improved. French language and literature, French feudal doctrines, and Romanesque architecture in particular bear the stamp of their genius. In Norman hands this architectural form from northern Italy became a distinctive, living thing, marked by great size, simplicity, and massiveness, and love of geometric ornament. The two abbeys founded here by the Conqueror and his wife are superb examples of the architecture which preceded the rise of the early Gothic in the Thirteenth century, and which also crossed the channel even before the Conquest.

The Conqueror was buried in one of these abbeys, and Matilda, his cousin-wife, in the other. Both were built with the hope of conciliating the pope regarding their marriage.

What a courtship was William's! A seven-year siege of Matilda's hand, disdain from the lady, slights not to be endured, and finally a wrathy lover rushing into Matilda's presence, seizing her by the hair, dragging her about the room, striking her, flinging her to the floor. After that she said yes!

Gathered His Hosts.

Still farther north is Dives. Here, in those stirring days of 1066, the future victor at Hastings gathered together "an innumerable host of horsemen, slingers, and foot soldiers," wild, adventurous spirits, the war strength of northern Europe, eager for the battle over the sea. In the river's mouth lay some 700 ships. The largest could hold fifty knights with all their horses and men; the smallest boats were not even decked over and were loaded to the gunwales with stores and provisions, including small grinding mills for the grain.

For pictorial history of the Conquest, go to Bayeux and look at the fifty-eight scenes embroidered on linen—the famous Bayeux tapestry. Probably no other fabric anywhere in the world surpasses it in interest and importance. Crude though it is in design, and partly defaced, it nevertheless recreates a momentous period in world history.

But all Norman roads lead to Rouen at last. Rouen, "Gothic Queen of France" and the duchy's ancient capital, where "each monument is a book, each stone a souvenir." Yet, more than architecture, more than antiquities, Joan of Arc is the strongest lure for Rouen is her town, saturated with glorious and tragic memories of her. Her spirit still hovers over the market place where, condemned for "having fallen back into the errors," she went to fiery martyrdom.

American Heroines

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK

Josephine Davis

FOR many years the Davis family of Gettysburg, Pa., preserved and proudly displayed a rusty little iron stove of ancient make. It was over this stove that Josephine Davis did her heroic bit in the famous Battle of Gettysburg.

It was on the first day of this decisive battle of the Civil war, when the Union army lost its stronghold on Seminary ridge and was forced to evacuate the town to General Lee. It is history that during the entire engagement only one citizen of the town was killed, the young woman Jennie Wade, whose little cottage, now a museum, still shows the hole by which the fatal shot entered, but throughout the whole three days' fighting soldiers of both armies, the blue and the gray, streamed through the streets, marching bravely into the fray, retreating weary, wounded, and disappointed.

Josephine, alone in the Davis home, watched these men go past. Although her own men folks were fighting with the Southern troops, her heart was torn with sympathy for both sides alike. There was not much an eighteen-year-old girl could do for them. But that little bit Josephine did. With the guns rumbling scarcely a mile away, Josephine built a vigorous fire in the little iron stove, gathered together all the flour in the house, about half a barrel, and set about baking it into crusty, delicious bread. When the warm loaves were out of the oven, she cut them into generous slices, spread them with molasses, set them out in pans, and placed them before the house for the hungry soldiers passing her door.

The news spread. Weary men, wounded, sometimes dying, stumbled up to her door for bread, and remained to be taken in, bandaged in torn sheets and towels, with such first aid as Josephine could devise. All day she worked, and part of the night, soothing, comforting. She converted into bandages every shred of cloth in the house.

When the guns were at last silent, and victory secured for the Union troops, seventeen dead were carried out of that little house and twice as many more wounded, well on their way to recovery, were taken away in ambulances to nearby hospitals.

"It was nothing," Josephine afterwards explained. "I always was a good baker!"

Slayers of Presidents

Leon Czolgocz, murderer of President William McKinley, was electrocuted in the state prison at Auburn, N. Y., October 29, 1901. After an autopsy his body was buried in quicklime in the prison lot in an Auburn cemetery. Charles Guiteau, who killed President Garfield, drew up a will shortly before he was hanged on June 30, 1882, in which he left the disposition of his body to Rev. William Hicks, who spent the last hours with him. It was buried beneath the pavement of a court in a wing of the jail in Washington, where he was executed.

Wearing the Leek

In the old days, Welsh farmers used to help each other at plowing time. Those in a certain district would gather at each farm in turn, and plow the fields there, then go on to the next. On these occasions they took leeks with them to put in the pot for a communal meal. This, it is suggested, was how the custom of wearing the leek on St. David's day originated. Presumably the farmers stuck the vegetables in their hats as the simplest way of carrying them.—Answers Magazine.

Exhibition Drill And Pictures At Armory

Since their return from summer maneuvers last August the officers and men of "A" Battery, 156th Field Artillery, have been working and drilling to perfect the exhibition drill which will be presented to the public next Monday night at the State Armory on Manor avenue. As far as possible actual field conditions will be simulated to show the public just how a battery of 75 mm. guns goes into firing position to carry out its mission of neutralizing or destroying enemy troops, bridges, tanks or artillery. Inasmuch as the order has been issued to replace all horse drawn 75 mm. artillery with truck drawn artillery, it may be the last opportunity to see the local outfit as a horse-drawn battery.

At the conclusion of the exhibition drill arrangements have been made with the regimental plans and training officer to show the official motion pictures of the summer training at Pine Camp last year. These pictures show various phases of activities at camp, including the mounted regimental review and the annual inspection.

The armory will be open for inspection that evening and refreshments will be provided at a nominal cost.

City League Teams In Practice Games

Harry Stile's Crystal Garden club, which opposes Jimmy Morgan's Repealers in the City Baseball League opener, had a brisk workout at the Athletic Field Friday evening and, despite the cold weather, the players put plenty of snap in their plays, reminding one of mid-season form.

On Sunday afternoon at the Athletic Field at 2 o'clock the Gardeners will play their first practice game, hooking up against Clow's Dairy, another outfit in the circuit.

Morgan's Repealers also will put the finishing touches on their training in a practice game. At the Athletic Field at 10:30 a. m. they will cross bats with Van Etten & Hogan's Truckers.

Wilbur Team Plays The Trojans Sunday

The Irish Block Nine, which defeated the Stonewater Boosters last week, are scheduled to play their second game of the season Sunday at the Wilbur diamond, meeting the Trojans of Kingston at 2:30 in the afternoon. Batteries will be Kenny and Cullen, pitchers, and Collins, catcher for the Irish Block; Uhle and Welch, pitchers, and McElrath, catcher for the Trojans.

Baseball Teams To Drill Sunday

Baseball teams of this city will practice Sunday as follows:

Kingston Senecas at Athletic Field, 1 p. m.

Battery A, 156th Field Artillery at Hasbrouck Park, 10 a. m.

Schryver Lumber Company at Kingston Fair Grounds, 10 a. m.

Clow's Dairy at Athletic Field, 2 p. m.

Pan Ams at Pan Am diamond, Saugerties road, 2 p. m.

Pan-Ams To Open On May 7 At Home

Today Manager Dutch Glaser of the Pan Am baseball team announced the Oilmen would start their season on Sunday afternoon, May 7, at the Pan Am diamond on the Saugerties road. Opponents of the locals will be one of the regular army teams from West Point.

BILLIARDS

Clifton Quick defeated Steve Kaslich 100-86 in the 43 inning match of the city billiard series at the Koenig A. C. Friday. High runs were Quick 12, Kaslich 7.

Sunday afternoon at Nick's Tony Gentile and Freddie Planthaber will play.

City Named for Gorky

The city of Nishni Novgorod, on the Volga river (the name in Russian means lower new city), has been changed by the Soviet government to Gorky in honor of the Russian author, Maxim Gorky, who was born there. The official name is simply Gorky, but the city is sometimes spoken of as Gorod Gorky in order to distinguish it from the village of Gorky near Moskva (Moscow), the capital city. The word "gorod" means city, but is sometimes spelled "grad," as in Leningrad, the name of St. Petersburg.

What Shakespeare Said:

Wooing, wedding, and repenting, is as a Scotch jig, a measure, and a cinque pace: the first suit is hot and hasty, like a Scotch jig, and full as fantastical; the wedding, mannerly-modest, as a measure, full of state and ancientry; and then comes repentance and, with his bad legs, falls into the cinque pace faster and faster, till he sinks into his grave.—"Much Ado About Nothing," Act 2, Scene 1.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Paintings From Prison

The Society of Independent Artists, New York, has received a dozen paintings from Clinton prison, Dannemora, an institution better known for riots than artistic production. The paintings are the work of convict-students in the prison's art class.

Indians Made Maple Sirup

When the white man came to America, says American Forests, he found Indians making sugar from the sap of the sugar maple tree. The Indians had developed every essential detail of the present process of producing maple sirup.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Professional wrestling, past and present, may have exposed itself to criticism, if not actual ridicule. It is frankly a variety show, no matter on what circuit it operates, rather than a dull, serious sporting affair. The operators have found out what the cash customers want and they are doing their best to supply it.

But I find no real reason for the latest whistle-blowing, including the pious action of the Illinois State Athletic Commission. So far as the "rasslers" are concerned, this merely helped stimulate their ballyhoo and gave "Jumping Joe" Savoldi a number of attractive notices in the papers as a result of his one-fall victory over "Jeem" Londos, the handsome Greek.

What if there happen to be four or five claimants to the "world's heavyweight wrestling championship?" Who cares, in the first place?

Why should there be any more concern about that than there is over the confusing claims for a number of the professional boxing titles?

It is a dull month when some shake-up is not made in the fistic ranking list of the National Boxing Association, in conflict with the independent rulings or decisions in similar matters by the boxing boards of New York, Pennsylvania, California and other states.

Curley Indignant

M. Jacques Curley, the metropolitan wrestling impresario who has ballyhooed a variety of public figures, from Emmeline Pankhurst to Georges Carpentier, no longer has a single kind word for Londos, one-time kingpin of the Curley menage.

"As for Londos saying that Savoldi is a very ordinary wrestler and that he can beat him every day and twice on Sunday," retorts Curley, "the fact remains that less than six weeks ago Savoldi won a clean fall over Londos in a three-fall match in a three-fall match in Los Angeles and if Savoldi can win a fall in Los Angeles, why is it so impossible for him to win a fall in Chicago?

"I am told Savoldi trained faithfully with two or three husky boys several weeks ahead of this Chicago match with Londos and that he was ready to wrestle for a King's ransom, and that Londos came along, making it a one-night stand to push him over. It is poor sportmanship to deprive him of the credit for his victory.... Give me authority for two weeks and I will straighten out wrestling, remove all suspicion therefrom. . . ."

Why Not A Play-Off?

M. Curley doesn't need any authority. He now happens to be a controlling, or at least is a substantial stockholder in three "champions"—Savoldi, Jim Browning and Ed (Don) George, the former Michigan collegian.

Perhaps he can arrange an elimination tournament on the hockey playoff plan, total falls and groans to count.

Unusual Pictures For Local Sportsmen

The Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association invites all local sportsmen, whether or not they are members of the association, to attend a free showing of moving pictures to be given at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, May 2, in the court room of the Ulster County Court House on Wall street.

These pictures were taken in Florida during the past winter by Harold E. King, a member of the Ulster County Association, and those local sportsmen who have seen them in private exhibition are so enthusiastic that Mr. King has consented to this public showing in order that all interested sportsmen may have an opportunity of seeing them.

These pictures cover much ground, all of it of interest to sportsmen. They show the actual taking of shark, dolphin, barracuda and other large fish in deep-sea fishing; they show many scenes of animal, bird and reptile life in the famous Everglades including alligators, various kinds of snakes, eagles and other birds; they show the details of Southern quail hunting including the work of the dogs in the hunting field.

Aside from the actual pictures of hunting, fishing and wild animal life these pictures cover such sporting events as a complete series of Sir Malcolm Campbell's world-record speed mile made on the famous sand beach course at Daytona Beach, together with the tuning-up trials that preceded the making of the record. They also show a series of the ill-fated "Akron" made not long before the disaster which destroyed the huge dirigible, these pictures having been taken while the "Akron" was in Florida in attendance at the National Air Races.

The showing of these pictures extends to all local sportsmen an unusual opportunity to see an extraordinary group of moving pictures with no obligation whatever on the part of those who attend and it is confidently expected that a large audience will be on hand to show their appreciation of Mr. King's courtesy.

SHIELDS AND STOEFEN IN TENNIS FINAL

Hot Springs, Ga., April 29 (AP).—Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles faced Francis X. Shields of New York today in the finals of the Hot Springs tennis tournament.

Mrs. Agnes Lamme of Rye, N. Y., playing superb tennis, defeated Miss Virginia Hilleary of Philadelphia, the favorite, to win the women's singles championship yesterday.

Victor and vanquished were teamed today against Miss Florence Le Boutillier and Miss Barbara Stoddard in the finals of the women's doubles.

Hot Shots Of Rejuvenated Hose

Pitching again as in his palmiest days, Ted Lyons, veteran White Sox right-hander, again is standing American league batsmen on their heads. He started with a three-hit game and followed it with a two-hitter. His sterling work and the slugging of Al Simmons, above, have been vital factors in the remarkable early showing of the Comiskey Clan.

Tagging Major League Bas

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Two American League ball cl appear to have "found" themsel after a shaky start. They are t Washington Senators and Bu Harris's promising Detroit Tige

Both fared badly in the first days of the campaign, then tur about in the past week and clim rapidly. The only other club to as well, the New York Giants, j gressed to the National League.

By turning back the New Y Yankees, 4-3 yesterday, in a ten-inning game that furnished sharp contrast to the furious encounter of the closing game their series at Washington Tues the Senators made it three victo over the champions in four g and maintained their tie with Cle land for third place.

The fines, suspensions and re mands that were handed out before had, perhaps, a chasten effect on the teams. Completing investigation of the fracas, Willi Harridge, American League pr dent, imposed $100 fines and fi day suspensions to the three p cipals, Ben Chapman of the Y kees, and Buddy Myer and Whitehill of Washington.

Babe Ruth and Dickey Star.

Babe Ruth and Bill Dickey h the game from being an easy Se tor victory by hitting home ru that tied the score. The Babe's his fourth of the season and cl with one on base.

Detroit was lucky to get its fou victory of the week over the St. L is Browns by a 5-3 count. Two w throws in the ninth inning allow the Tigers to score the winning r and cost Ed Wells a well pitch game.

Cleveland walloped the Chic White Sox, 5 to 1, behind the ste pitching of Sarge Connally. Phi delphia's Athletics, scoring six r in the third inning, beat out the B ton Red Sox 9 to 8.

Bucs Come Back

In the National League, Pitt burgh climbed back into a virtual for first place with the Giants. T Bucs, held to four hits by Jim Mo ney, St. Louis southpaw, beat t Cardinals 2 to 0 by placing two their blows neatly behind a com of walks.

The Cincinnati Reds blasted L Warneke from the slab with runs in the eighth inning and defe ed the Chicago Cubs 6 to 1. It w the Red's fourth victory in games, their third straight over Cubs and the second time Red Lu had beaten Warneke. The Bost Braves pounded John Berly hard the early innings and defeated t Phillies 5 to 2. The Giants Brooklyn had an open date.

THE MYSTERY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

ALL of the men where do they go to?
Before the photograph or piano
Men [illegible] making pose to the [illegible] ladies.
And since time manufactured millions
For all they have to go on making
Though time and tons of steel [illegible] taking.
And then can sell them without trying
For others have to keep on buying.

But women have another wonder
That has them just about snowed under.
It makes the thinnest woman thinner
And generally right after dinner.
We do not set so big a table
In fact, of late we are not able.
To wonder, as we scrape each crumb from
Each plate, where all the dishes come from?

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Pittsburgh, April [illegible] (AP)—Paul Ryan, four years old, says he is through with automobiles and women for life.

Paul's father left an automobile parked outside Paul's house. Paul decided to take Rose Marie Casper, [illegible], for a ride.

Two minutes later they crashed into another car parked a block away. The pair escaped with bruises.

Our Dumb Friends

Detroit—Mrs. Emily Wittman is a Judge Christopher Stein [illegible] found one of her hens in a neighbor's possession. She offered to prove the hen knew her. So Judge went to court.

Released from her basket, Biddy ignored Wittman. Instead she retired to a corner and nonchalantly laid an egg, which the court immediately claimed. The case was adjourned for a week.

The End Comes Peacefully

Minneapolis—Felix Cornayer's father and mother died in their sleep when they were 112 years old. His grandfather died the same way at the age of 116.

"And some night I'll go to sleep and die just as they did," he told the inmates at the Old Soldiers' Home. And Thursday night his prediction came true.

He was 106 years old and a veteran of the Civil War.

Jail Breaking Dividends

Chicago—A jail break paid Fred Horn a $14 dividend.

Arrested as a bank robber suspect and later fined $14 on a disorderly conduct charge, he escaped and went out to raise the money to pay his fine. Failing, he returned. Another judge heard his story and cut the fine to $10.

The War of the Suds

Duluth, Minn.—And now comes the beer war. It started when one dealer raised the size of the nickel glass from 8 to 12 ounces. Several other places followed suit.

Where's the Body

Milwaukee—Alex Allen, 16, inmate of an industrial home, told authorities he had killed his uncle and buried his body in the basement of a cottage. Police dug in the basement until they were tired. Then they telephoned the uncle and he denied everything.

Hiccough Sufferer

Memphis, Tenn.—Lieut. William Lewis of the Memphis fire department is in the hospital here with his sixth annual attack of hiccoughs.

Every year since 1928 the fireman has had a siege. Last year's attack lasted 39 days. Three years ago, he hiccoughed 14 days and another attack continued 21 days.

Lieut. Lewis's 1933 attack began Sunday. Carbon dioxide gave temporary relief yesterday. His weight has dropped from 226 to 200 pounds since the attack began.

Salaam to the Inevitable

Traverse City, Mich.—School authorities decreed Monday the opening of the trout season, will be a holiday.

From past experience they found none of the boys attended school on the first day of the fishing season anyway.

$12 City Election

Shawnee, Okla.—This city of 20,000 held a school election Friday at a total cost of $12. Parents and teachers served as election officials without pay.

Lucky Girl

Seattle—Bear Inspector Edmund J. Miller, hearing muffled cries from within a vault in the county courthouse, spread an alarm.

Inside they found Miss Cecil James, a stenographer, who had been imprisoned more than an hour.

Voltages Necessary to Electrocute Criminals

Electrocution of criminals in various states often raises the question of how much electricity is required to snuff out life. According to one authority, it is impossible to say what voltages are safe, for so much depends upon the conditions existing at time of contact. One man was killed near Prague by coming into contact with a wire charged with a pressure of 86 volts, yet electricians have touched wires carrying currents of such high pressures as 1,000 volts without experiencing any ill effects. Criminals are electrocuted in this country by making contact with a high voltage, 1,800 to 2,000, for three or four seconds, reduced to 300 volts until nearly a minute has elapsed, raised to high voltage for a second or two, again reduced to a low voltage until one minute has elapsed, when it is again raised to a high voltage for a few seconds and the current broken. A second, or even a third, brief contact is sometimes made later, but there seems little doubt that circulation and respiration cease with the first contact. The general deduction has been drawn from experiments in electrocution work at Sing Sing that no human body can withstand an A. C. current of 1,500 volts and 700-volt current has produced death, while for the continuous current it may be necessary to use 3,000 volts to produce death.

Loss of Color Fatal

Sometimes wild creatures lose their natural coloring and appear white. This is albinism, and we see specimens of it more frequently in the wild world. These unfortunate freaks are rather beautiful, and for this reason do not survive long, for there is a sound idea among many owners of a gun that such specimens are valuable and never fail a prey to these misguided people.

McAllister Company Starts 103rd Year of Night Line Operation

Assuming control of the fleet and properties of the Hudson River Navigation Company at midnight Sunday after order of the Federal Court, the McAllister Navigation Company, [illegible] McAllister, enters the famous steamboat line [illegible] 103rd year of operation on the Hudson River, according to Captain [illegible] F. McAllister, president of the company bearing his name.

Founded in 1826 the Hudson River Navigation Company has brought [illegible] years of operation to the Hudson [illegible] a history crowded with stirring tales of competition, [illegible] of the new [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] at [illegible] of the eighteen [illegible] part of the United States which in [illegible] [illegible] monopoly of the Hudson River after Robert Fulton had been [illegible] of commercial craft on the river for more than twenty years. His "Clermont" on the waters had been given him by the State to assure the protection of his [illegible] development [illegible] steam navigation.

The [illegible] the first incorporated [illegible] of which has been lost in the [illegible] of many years, was first operated [illegible] competition with the Fulton-Livingston and Cornelius Vanderbilt interests in the Hudson River trade.

[illegible] 1826 as the records disclose the first name of the company [illegible] that year, according to George W. Murdock of Kingston, who in his [illegible] years of life many of which have been spent [illegible] up and down the river has collected an almost complete record of Hudson River steamboats and history. Daniel Drew and [illegible] founded the People's Line of steamboats on the Hudson. It was the first venture in night sailings from New York and Albany.

For more than seventy years the People's Line, also known in later years as the New Jersey Steamboat Company, continued in Hudson River operation under that name. In April, 1902, along with the Citizen's Line, it was acquired by the Hudson Navigation Company, a firm incorporated in 1902 by the late Charles W. Morse.

The Hudson Navigation Company continued the operation of the fleet until 1921 when the line was thrown into receivership and remained in that status until 1925.

Colonel E. C. Carrington, former campaign manager for the late Theodore Roosevelt, in that year, purchased the fleet from the receivers for $4,200 and started its operation again under a new corporation called the Hudson River Navigation Company.

In January of 1932, however, the company again went into the hands of receivers. In May of last year Federal Judge John C. Knox, after calling for proposals for the operation of the line for the receivers, accepted the bid of the McAllister Navigation Company and awarded the company a six-month lease of the properties and fleet.

Under the expert and experienced guidance of Captain D. F. McAllister, a veteran in towing, transportation and operation of excursion and steamboat services in the vicinity of New York and on the Hudson, the old company proved successful in operation.

The vessels to be taken over by the McAllister Navigation Company will include the well-known river boats Berkshire, Trojan and Rensselaer, which, before being inducted in service several weeks from now, will be thoroughly overhauled and reconditioned at a cost of more than $[illegible]. In the interim, the McAllister liners Hartford and Middletown will continue to ply between New York and Albany. With the advent of the new ships in service they will be held in reserve or employed in other services plans for which are now being formulated by Captain McAllister.

The Berkshire is a vessel with accommodations for 500 passengers and space for the carriage of sixty-five automobiles. The Trojan and Rensselaer, sister ships, are provided with 175 accommodations and space for thirty-seven motor cars.

Many rooms on the ships are equipped with hot and cold running water and several suites are available on each with private baths and private decks. Numerous public rooms including an observation room and a ball room are provided on the vessels for the convenience of passengers. Restaurants, employing excellent cooks, are also provided on each of the ships.

Veteran Hudson River steamboat skippers who have served for many years on ships plying the waters of the river, will be in command of the vessels when they enter service. Captain F. W. Chapman will be in command of the Berkshire, while Captains George H. Warner and William Van Wyen will be on the bridge of the Trojan and Rensselaer, respectively.

Many Elks Greet Their New Ruler

A very large and enthusiastic gathering of Elks welcomed Maurice Niles, their newly installed Exalted Ruler, at his first meeting as Exalted Ruler on Thursday evening at the Elks Home this city.

Following the meeting a splendid program of music was rendered by the Paramount Broadcasting Orchestra under the direction of "Bot Steuding." The "Harmonians" consisting of Messrs. Dunn, Murphy, Flynn, Dempsey and Ketterman in two groups of numbers entertained the large gathering of members who remained after the meeting.

Refreshments were served and a very fine time was had by all who were fortunate enough to be present.

Approximately fifty per cent of Michigan's 1932 potato crop was hauled to market by motor truck.

Collegiate Gold Diggers

Jobs Scarce—So Co-Eds Try Picks And Pans But Boy Friends Do Most of the Work

Colorado co-eds dig gold, all right—with a little assistance from their campus boy friends. In the foreground Gil Beck of Ogden, Utah, shows how its done; behind him Ralph Blakey, Casper, Wyo.; and Myers Baumgardner, Boulder, Colo., have as overseers Patricia True, Great Falls, Mont.; Betty Russ, Albany, Tex., and (seated) Margaret Barnum, Pueblo, Colo.

Boulder, Colo. (AP).—Betty Co-ed on the University of Colorado campus knows where the gold is. It's in them thar well known hills, pard, and Betty goes and gets it herself.

Jobs Few, So They Dig

As a matter of fact, however, her campus boy friend is better at the job, and, although Betty can go along, he does most of the work.

Depleted funds and fewer available "town jobs" made harder than ever the task of the 50 per cent of Colorado university's men students who work their way. So the ingenious collegians began to dig their education out of hard rock.

Hard rock mining took too much time away from classrooms and books, and so most of the student miners have turned to placer mining on locations not being worked.

From dawn until a few minutes before their "eight o'clocks" and after classes until dusk, the students "major in mining" with picks, shovels and pans. Week-ends that once were for hiking have become gold-digging parties and their co-ed dates help pan the yellow dust.

Makes $6 To $10 Weekly

Gil Beck of Ogden, Utah, is one of the most successful of the "Collegiate Forty-niners," a newly-formed campus society.

Beck, with the help of a mild winter and spring weather, has averaged from $6 to $10 per week from his mining. About $1 a day, with luck, is an average run.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "The White Sister." One of the most beautifully executed pictures of the year is this well known story of a girl, who believing her lover dead, seeks peace as a Catholic White Sister, only to have her soldier sweetheart reappear. Helen Hayes in the title role accomplishes the almost impossible feat of rising above her other masterly screen performances, and Clark Gable, as the Italian officer who loves her, does his finest work since rising to stardom. Not only is the story tender and understanding, but the flawless direction of Victor Fleming has raised the play to greatness. Lewis Stone, Louise Closser Hale, and May Robson also contribute outstanding performances. Four star entertainment.

Orpheum: "The Night of June 13" and "Fargo Express." Excitement and entertainment are to be discovered in the first talkie, a mystery drama that centers around the people of an ordinary neighborhood. "Fargo Express" with Ken Maynard and the wonder horse "Tarzan" are to be seen in the second attraction, a brisk western tale with hard riding, gun fighting, and romance in great profusion.

Broadway: "Private Jones." Lee Tracy in the role of a buck private is a characterization well worth seeing. Mr. Tracy does himself proud in this entertaining story, and the talkie isn't only comedy, but also a subtle effort to show the futility of war. Brought up in an atmosphere of anti-war thought, Private Jones is against fighting, and to cap that, he hasn't any reason to go out and kill Germans. But on the other hand, there are issues that stir him into action, and the play is thoroughly enjoyable and thought provoking. Gloria Stuart is also in the cast. Worth seeing.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "The Menace" and "Wild Horse Mesa." The first is a mystery drama well acted with H. B. Warner, Bette Davis and Walter Byron in the featured roles. The second is another of Zane Grey's great western stories. Some very beautiful photography and some thrilling western scenes and [illegible] to the effectiveness of the [illegible] Broadway: Same.
